The campaigning begins today and Northwest will start deciding next year's executive board.

Student Senate elections are from 8 a.m. April 17 to 4 p.m. April 18. Students can vote by logging into their VAX accounts and typing "vote" at the prompt.

A rules meeting will be at 5 p.m. today; after the meeting candidates can begin campaigning.

This year's election features new elements designed to benefit student senators.

"Student Senate is ... having a separate public relations chair who is a public relations major and not on senate working with our public relations committee to relieve some of the pressure of the senate public relations people," Jon Baker, English education major, said.

"She is basically designing the signs, but it is still our committee's responsibility to put the signs up."

One major difference in the voting this year is students will be able to vote for four class representatives and five on- or off-campus representatives, instead of just one in each category.

With the election a week away, some students said they had not heard anything about it yet.

"In past years, I've seen posters, read articles and heard about the elections from many sources," Jill Williams, public relations major, said.

"This year I haven't heard anything. There is a serious lack of publicity."

Candidates for president are Sarah Alexander, Kelly Ferguson and Angel Harris-Lewis.

Vice president candidates are Julie Bookless and Angel McAdams.

Secretary candidates are Camilla Geuy and Stephanie Puricelli and treasurer candidates are Curt Friedel and Devin Warrington.

The on-campus representative candidates are Jon Baker, Les Clark, Diarra Dunlap and Carrie Venable.

Off-campus representative candidates include Sara Azdell, Sarah Derks, David Douglass, Charice Douthat, Alethea Fale, Jennifer Ludwig, Dawn Hardymartin and Sam Scholten.

Sophomore class representative candidates are Les Clark, Marianne Miller, Kyle Niemann, Monica W. Smith, Carrie Venable, Heather Wardlow and Laurie Zimmerman.

Junior class representative candidates are Sara Azdell, Mark Bigelow and Jennifer Ludwig.

Senior class representative candidates are Sarah Derks, David Douglass, Charice Douthat, Diarra Dunlap, Dawn Hardymartin and Sam Scholten.

Reporter finds job after error in column

Daily Forum writer says he took the fall for mistake of 'much deeper problem'

by Jacob DiPietro
Chief Reporter

Despite losing his job at the Maryville Daily Forum, after allegation of possible libel, Shane Whitaker has moved to the Cameron Citizen Observer.

Whitaker was forced to resign March 31 after a person who is not employed by the Forum altered a column written by Sen. Sam Graves, R-Mo. The added line stated Graves only supports white males

Sen. Sam Graves

the Forum took.

Whitaker said he was surprised when Forum publisher Jerry Pye asked him to resign. However, Pye declined to comment. Whitaker said it was unfamiliar business practice for someone like himself to be asked to leave instead of someone with more responsibility in the company.

"For the lowest man on the totem pole to take the fall for a mistake of this proportion is new to me," Whitaker said.

Although Whitaker did "take the fall," he said the problem is with the organization.

"I am never the only one responsible for editing a page, including this one," Whitaker said. "...I have decided to bear the brunt of a much deeper problem with the organization."

Whitaker said he made sure the column was typed in early because he was leaving town, and he said he left the page and the original article on his desk in case there were any questions. Although Whitaker received national attention from the international media, Washington Post and Rush Limbaugh, he said he is not going to let this one incident stop his career.

"I am not going to let this be the downfall of my career," Whitaker said. "I'm much stronger than that."

Whitaker, a 1994 graduate of Northwest and a Forum reporter for over two years, starts his new job Thursday.

Water main accident causes shutdown

Many missed meals thanks to water loss during pipe break last week

by Lindsey Corey
Chief Reporter

The steam line project has forced students to find new routines, inside and outside the classroom.

A backhoe hit a broke steam line in two places last Thursday afternoon. The accident caused all the water west of North College Drive to be shut off. The Union, North-South Complex, Administration Building, Lamkin, the Aquatic Center and Martindale Gym were affected.

"We're sorry for the inconvenience," said Dave Gieseke, director of news and information. "It's like when the lights on campus go out or a tornado hits."

One of the breaks was noticed immediately by construction workers because it was visible from the construction area.

ARAMARK employees noticed that they weren't getting water, before it was officially announced to the rest of the campus.

"The students ended up suffering" Barry Beacom, ARAMARK cash operations manager, said. "A lot of people missed a meal."

The first break was patched in an hour and a half. When they brought the water back on-line, they realized there was another break.

"It caught us by surprise," Jeff Barlow, director of environmental services, said. "It could happen again because when we dig we only have general ideas of where the utilities are."

The second break was unexposed and took about five hours to repair because of all the digging. Repairs were finished around midnight.

"The workers did a good job," Barlow said. "The contractor and our own people stayed the entire time." As soon as ARAMARK employees got word of the problem, they shut down pop and yogurt machines and the walk-in coolers so motors would not burn up.

"We went into emergency mode," Beacom said. "I was at a loss, because we couldn't do anything. The prior one was scheduled."

They found the water for cleaning from the Conference Center and began closing food places. Freshens and Pretzel Logic and Smoothies were closed by 4 p.m. because they require water. World of Cuisine did not open for the evening meal. The Deli and Itza Pizza were closed at 7:30 p.m.

Sweets and Treats, Tower View and Cat's Commons were open their regular hours. Canned pop was sold in place of fountain beverages.

"All the dishes were dirty by the time we were done serving," Beacom said.

"We held off until we started running out of things," Beacom said. "It's a by-product of progress. We just have to live with it and deal with it the best we can."

An estimated $4,000 to $5,000 were lost in sales. "Because most of that was Aladine, it'll be spent at some point," Beacom said.

All the yogurt was lost and some things in the cooler were lost.

"We have several hundreds of dollars in lost product," Beacom said. "There's not going to be much more work around here so we're hoping for no more problems."

There was also some physical damage. When the water was brought back on-line a hot-water heater in the Administration Building's second floor ceiling caused a flood.

"It had drained and when the water hit the heating element, it blew it out," Barlow said.

The water heater will be removed and the restroom's heater will be used.

OurView OF THE UNIVERSITY

University must stay true to its promises

Lou Holtz, former Notre Dame head football coach, used to always prepare his team for a game. He was famous for under promising and over delivering results. In pregame press conferences he always tried to explain how good the other team was. Simply put — he mastered the art of delivering more than he promised.

Northwest, however, is doing the opposite. At this time last year, the University was promising classroom instruction would change with EC+.

This new program was supposed to open a whole new door in which instructors become more interactive in the education of their students. In addition, students could network with others, which allowed the instructor another way to introduce material.

Many students viewed this as an opportunity to get in on what the administration called a new groundbreaking program.

However, the University has since decided that EC+ is no longer a feasible program, so they decided to terminate it at the end of the school year. Thus leaving current EC+ students with a $2,000 computer.

EC+ instructor Greg Roper says he still believes the program could work if it were modified instead of done away with.

"The biggest drawback was lack of conference software, which would have enabled us to have real-time, on-screen discussions," Roper said.

However, Northwest is not trying to fix the present system. Now the latest bandwagon to jump on is EC97, which is a program that each residence hall room will receive a new personal computer to replace the old VAX machine. How can the University be so supportive of a program they haven't even tested yet?

More importantly, how will students know what kind of equipment will be available to them next year? Think of the track record they are following.

The University needs to learn from modest Holtz and at least deliver, if not over deliver, on promises, not only to the students, but also to the faculty.

We are concerned that the University will jump the gun again with the EC97 program. Programs need to be tested on a small scale, evaluated and implemented if everything is successful. The problem Northwest is facing again is throwing together a million dollar project with barely even any research or pilot projects started.

If the past is any indication of the future, then for the sake of the students, officials need to slow down the advertising campaign.

Students need to have their faith in the University reassured before they get their hopes up for new program which could become the next EC+.

Learning the true meaning of trust

Nicole Fuller

Growing up, people value what means most to them — love

What is the world coming to? What kind of people are we becoming? What will the next generation be?

Growing up you learn lessons in life and grow with those. Some things may be good and some may be bad. For example, learning not to steal, forming friendships and breaking promises and losing those friendships are just a few examples of the lessons in life that we must face.

Two things that are vital to what we learn in life is how to love and trust others — can someone love someone if they cannot trust them?

When you put your trust in someone you expect them to respect that trust no matter what.

I have learned that unless you absolutely and positively know the person, you cannot trust them until they can show you an equal trust through the actions that they portray.

Recently I have watched a good friend go through the struggle of trust. She put her trust in a person and believed that he would not break that between the two of them.

She was wrong, though. He betrayed that trust by breaking an understanding between the two and this proved that she could not trust him as a person.

It not only dealt with trusting him but also with a friendship and someone she could have faith in.

She also put her trust toward another good friend who let her down. How can a close friend betray the trust that friends have between each other?

The friendship a person has with someone else is a sacred bond between two people. When that bond is broken by distrust then there is no recognition of trust between the two unless the person can prove that they can be trusted again.

In the situation of love, I have watched my sister, Heather, learn how to love and have learned that the true meaning of what love is — not just what is on the outside but what counts is on the inside.

It just hit me the other day that she is moving on in life with love and is getting married May 3 to the man she loves and trusts.

But I know that I can still trust her to always be there for me when I need her the most or just need a shoulder to lean on or to cry on.

I also have put my own trust in Chris, my future brother-in-law, to always be there for her and to never hurt her in anyway. Sisters are always there to look out for each other.

I believe that I will never have to rethink my trust in Chris for he is a sweet and well-rounded individual and perfect for my sister.

Watching the two of them has shown me what love is really all about and not just sex. I have seen how they talk, how they respond to each other and how they love each other from the heart.

As I have said before, you must be able to trust someone before you can truly love them.

So don't let your guard down until you absolutely know that you can trust that person and never doubt for one second that they will break that trust.

OurView OF THE COMMUNITY

City needs to follow through with bond

Maryville residents cast their votes on April 1 for the seventh Maryville R-II School District Bond since 1993, but the only difference this year is that it passed.

We applaud the community's support of the school bond, but let's remember this is only the first step. Within the next few years, the community will need to support the passage of a handful of phases to make this project a long-term success.

The Maryville R-II School District divided the educational facilities master plan into three phases with the idea that the needs of the district are substantial. These phases specify the sequence in which the needs are anticipated to be proposed. All three phases in the plan need voter approval.

Passing by 61 percent, phase I includes the construction of a new middle school, as well as renovations to Maryville High School and Eugene Field Elementary School.

This improvement to the district is essential, and judging by the second-highest voter turnout, Maryville patrons agreed.

Now that the first phase has been approved, it is time to look and concentrate on phases II and III.

Phase I has already begun with voter approval and will be carried out by making some of the improvements needed by the district. Phase I includes a 57-cent debt service levy to pay off the $9.485 million bond issue over 20 years.

After phase I is completed, the next step is phase II, which also includes more needed improvements to the elementary and high schools. When this phase reaches the ballot box, it will include a debt service levy and/or a capital projects levy.

The final phase in this master plan is phase III. Phase III will include a high school improvement to provide an auditorium.

When it comes time to vote on this phase, it will include proceeds from a performing arts facility trust and refinancing the bond debt.

There is much work and effort that needs to happen to complete the educational facilities plan, but the success of this plan depends on the voters.

Now that the beginning of Phase I is complete, it is time for Maryville patrons to continue to show support for the district in the next two phases to help the district make the essential improvements needed.

Tragedy doesn't need any help from cults

We have moved out of March madness and into cult madness! What possesses these people to devote their precious lives to castration and suicide? I really don't want to criticize these people, but they are just a little weird. No — they are insane.

Who are these geniuses who wake up one day and think, "Hey, I am going to start a cult. We will one day join a space ship that will carry us to the next life by killing our earthly bodies when eating applesauce or pudding laced with an anti-seizure drug and drink vodka simultaneously?"

Where do they come from? I want to know. This whole situation is becoming a vicious circle. All the cults' practices vary, but all end in tragedy. Tragedy doesn't need any help. I'm telling you there's more than enough for everyone. Just thrive off the unplanned hardships and forget about the planned, bloody, murderous attempts to outdo the previous. Stop the madness.

Every time I hear about Charles Manson's parole hearing, I almost lose my lunch. This man admittedly killed people, for God's sake, he knowingly killed an unborn child (like I said, tragedy happens every day without any help) and he repeatedly has parole hearings.

Granted, the heaven's gate cult (I just can't dignify capitalizing the name of a cult, sorry) didn't murder anyone else, but they still killed life. For what — to join an alleged space craft hidden behind a comet?

All kinds of speculations are being made. Some say the members of the cult chose death over watching the movie "Heaven's Gate" for the 300th time.

Now, video store owners are asked to post warning signs about the movie.

Is the world really coming to an end? Will the "twelve monkeys" succeed in their mission? Do I want to die? I can only answer one of these questions. I DON'T WANT TO DIE!

LETTERS

Firing story incorrect

Dear Editor,
I am responding to the article concerning the resignation of Brent Sneed. I cannot comment on Brent's specific situation because of legal restrictions, but I can say that the Missourian incorrectly reported the basis for his release of employment.

When a situation arises questioning the effectiveness of an employee, consequences are very carefully considered. With a serious infraction such as assault, theft, deliberate dishonesty or other incident where an employee's trustworthiness has been compromised, release may be the most appropriate action.

Over the past five years, this has been the decision in a small number of cases. Some individuals chose to appeal the decision, but nothing was overturned. I say that out of conviction that I take such responsibility very seriously, confident when I recommend that action is the only recourse and in the best interests of the staff member and the community.

When the action is taken, we act responsibly to enable the employee to leave their position with as much dignity as possible; with no ill will on the part of our department. We do not force student employees to move off campus or cancel their board plan. The continuation of these contracts is at the staff member's discretion and their expense. It's important for the community and the staff member that transition off the staff happen quickly and we allow as much flexibility as possible in facilitating their move. In the past, we have relocated released staff members to temporary guest room housing to assist them in making off campus housing arrangements.

In terms of communication, our lines are always open and we employ a multitude of feedback channels regularly. Twice we have participated in a communication audit and implemented changes based on each report. A major opportunity for student feedback is coming the week of April 27 as the staff distributes the first annual Quality of Life Assessment (QLA). We hope you take the time to complete and return it. We truly care what you think.

If there are further questions regarding the fair employment practices of the Office of Residential Life or any issue you wish to offer comment, please contact our office.

Last column at University is final farewell

Dave Gleseke

Bidding an end to the campus and the Northwest Missourian

I like to think of this as my last hurrah with the Northwest Missourian. After 20 years of articles, photographs and columns, my "career" with this publication will effectively come to a close with this issue. It has been a great run.

Many of you may not know that I was once upon a time the editor of this illustrious newspaper. In fact, I was the editor the day the Administration Building burned in 1979. I also have served as photographer, ad salesman, circulation manager, sports editor and writer, movie and book reviewer and even wrote the Stroller a time or two.

In recent years, the Missourian has asked me from time to time to write a column. As I prepare to leave Northwest at the end of the year, they asked me if I would like to write one last time for the publication that started my career.

It's been a marvelous run for me at Northwest. I have been fortunate enough to be involved in so many projects and activities on campus that it's hard to remember all of them. I'm grateful for the opportunity to work at this institution — which I owe all to Bob Henry, my now retired former boss, who hired me first as the University's photographer and then later as the director of news and information.

Bob took a chance that I would pan out in this position. I'm sure I made Bob's life hell a couple of times over those 10 years that we worked together as I got involved in more and more things.

Thanks for the opportunity, Bob. In recent years, my interests on campus have changed. We've moved away from being strictly a news operation in the Office of Public Relations to one which is involved in virtually every area on campus.

And while that has made it tough at times, it has always made each day new and different. I think that's what I have loved the most about Northwest — the new challenges that every faculty and staff member face day in and day out here.

For me those new challenges have been organizing Homecoming, offering the best entertainment with Northwest Encore Performances, producing quality television and radio ads which encourage prospective students to look at attending Northwest, being involved with intercollegiate athletics and developing a World Wide Web site which stands out from the rest.

And while I may not have accomplished all these goals, I hope I have left a good enough foundation that my successor can come in and improve these programs.

It's hard to leave knowing that some of those goals haven't been finalized. It's also hard to leave with so many new and exciting things on the horizon for Northwest.

But it's also hard to leave the many friends and associates I have here on campus. But after virtually 20 years at the same place, it was time for my wife, Carole, and I to move along.

So it's with a heavy heart that I conclude my final contribution to the Northwest Missourian. I just hope some of the things we have started here continue long after this particular issue is history.

Dave Gleseke is the news and information director at Northwest.

Changing of season brings increased risks

Ron Brohammer

Summer can be full of fun with a little care and forethought

Even though Mother Nature appears to be having a (hopefully) last winter frolic, summer is just around the corner. Along with all the enjoyment and pleasure of summer comes an increased risk of accidents and injuries that often cost time, money and inflict undue pain and suffering. With just a little care and forethought, this can be prevented and our summer can be fun and enjoyable.

Summer often brings long driving trips and more crowded than usual highways. When travel planning, plan your trip well. Don't overextend yourself — i.e. don't try to cram too many miles into one day, about 350 miles should be the maximum per day, or you may suffer from fatigue and go to sleep at the wheel — not a good vacation. Make frequent rest stops and get out and walk around for just a few minutes; this can refresh you and help you stay alert. Always when driving expect the unexpected — watch out for the other driver and don't become complacent. Stay within the speed limit, and I believe, most importantly, always wear your seat belt properly aligned and fastened. There's a new caution now. If your vehicle is equipped with air bags, do not allow children or small adults to sit in the front seat. Some extra precautions are warranted. When children travel in cars with passenger-side air bags, children under 12 can be killed by the air bag. The back seat is the safest place for children. NEVER put a rear-facing child seat in the front. Sit as far back as possible from the airbag and ALWAYS use seat belts and child restraints. Finally, never drive when you are fatigued from a long day of "fun in the sun" or after consuming alcohol.

Summer activities also frequently involve the old barbecue grill. This innocuous piece of equipment also deserves respect. If you have a charcoal grill, never add fuel to the charcoal after the charcoal has been lit. This can result in eyebrow singeing flameups or even an explosion that may take the deck right off your house. Watch those little fingers around all grills; young children may not realize the kettle, drum, base, lid or whatever can burn badly. If you have a gas grill, make sure the hoses, connections, are tight and in good repair. Be very careful when lighting this type of grill. You can get explosions from this grill that can not only take off your deck, but maybe half the house, too. Always shut the gas off at the tank when you are finished using a gas grill.

Water safety is another critical area of concern for many of us. This has taken on a whole new level of importance since the development of Lake Mozingo. I'll bet there are many novice boaters in the area who just can't wait to get on our beautiful lake. Please get out there and enjoy it, BUT make sure you know the operating parameters of your boat and the rules of the lake. Never go on the lake without proper, approved life jackets for every person on the boat. If you or someone you know is fortunate enough to have a personal water craft (PWC), make sure to operate it with good judgement. Boats, both pontoon and ski, PWCs, and fishermen, water skiers and swimmers can never occupy the same space at the same time without a problem, — so always be vigilant. It won't be any fun to spend the summer in a hospital. Boats, like cars, should never be operated by anyone under the influence of alcohol.

There are a myriad of other summer activities that we, in this glorious land, can participate in.

I don't want to put a damper on anyone's activities, but remember, be careful; think about the consequences of your actions BEFORE you act; always consider the other person and finally, have a great, fun-filled summer.

Ron Brohammer is the assistant city manager/director of public works of Maryville. He is also the safety coordinator.

IT'S YOUR TURN

Do you trust the new EC97 program after what happened with EC+?

"No, I do not trust the EC97 program because just because the EC+ program, it will go away and it is just another way for this University to screw us out of more money." Jealaine Vaccaro, English major

"I don't trust it because EC+ was supposed to be a big thing and look what happened with that." Jana Van Maaren, psychology major

"I don't trust the new program because I don't think they have thought the plan through very well and haven't considered how it is going to affect everyone on campus." Stephanie McKelg, accounting major

"I think that EC97 is the best thing that the college can do for the students concerning cost as of now. I do think that EC97 will follow through when the prices of laptops do go down." Curt Friedel, agricultural education major

"Yes I do because I feel like the EC+ program was helpful in seeing what will work, so this probably has a better chance of working." Ray McGalla, psychology major

"I think we can trust the new EC97 program because as opposed to EC+, it's going to affect more students because it's a campus-wide program." John Coffey, business management major

"THE MYSTERY OF EDWIN DROOD"

Cast members Lisa Scharfel (Wendy), Tiffany Leever (Beatrice) and Brian Bellof (the chairman) introduced the opening act of "The Mystery of Edwin Drood" by Charles Dickens. The performance is based on a novel that Dickens didn't finish, therefore the audience is left to determine the ending. The show will run April 17-20.

Audience to decide play's finale

by Stephanie Zellstra
Missourian Staff

Students will bring a Tony Award winning Broadway musical to the Mary Linn Performing Arts Center April 17-20, but don't think that if you see it once you've seen it all.

"The Mystery of Edwin Drood" will feature different endings every night, depending upon which of the 16 endings the audience chooses.

The show begins at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, April 17, and runs through a 2 p.m. matinee on Sunday, April 20.

"Drood" is a solve-it-yourself musical set in 19th century England. Based upon an unfinished novel by Charles Dickens, the play was half finished when Dickens died, so the audience is left to vote on 16 different possible endings.

The musical has something for everyone with dancing, singing and high drama. It is actually a play within a play; there are many things going on at once.

Audience participation is an important part of the musical.

With all the different aspects to the play, there has been a lot of cooperation. The music department, theater department and Encore Performances have put a great deal of effort into the production, said Charles

Schultz, professor of theater and director of the production.

"The production has been very demanding with the music and so forth and has challenged the talent pool," Schultz said. "The support I have gotten has been vital."

The cast is made up of 33 music and theater majors. It was cast in November with three auditions with rehearsals starting after break in January.

Tickets for the production are $7 for orchestra and $5 for balcony and are on sale from 8 a. m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday at the Student Services Center on the first floor of the Administration Building.

Publications garner numerous awards

Tower nationally named as one of top four books, Missourian 2nd in state

by Kathy Brocky
Missourian Staff

Student publications showed off their work at both state and national award levels.

At the national level, all three publications received awards from the Associated Collegiate Press and the Columbia Scholastic Press Association.

Last weekend at the Missouri College Media Association convention in Kansas City, both Tower yearbook and the Northwest Missourian were recognized for their achievements.

Tower competed and placed first in all but one category and also received the top award for Best Theme Development in the 1995-1996 yearbook. Amanda McManigal, editor in chief of Tower, said the award was a great honor for everyone who worked on the yearbook.

"It was very exciting for us because they were won by a lot of staffers," McManigal said. "It was nice to see other people on the editorial board being recognized for the hard work that they've put in."

In the newspaper competition, the Northwest Missourian placed second in the Division II category for Best Overall Newspaper and 1st place for In-Depth News Reporting for the story on parking fines at Northwest. Individual awards for photography, feature page and information graphics were won. Colleen Cooke, managing editor for the Missourian, said in the past, the Missourian had not received awards in many categories, but this year was much better.

"This year we took a lot more time to put together our entries," Cooke said. "In the past we've been kind of disappointed just because we know we did good work, but if we don't put together the entries well or wait until the last minute, the judges don't see our best work. I think they got a good sampling of our best work."

On a national level, Tower and Heartland View both received awards in New York City at the 1997 Gold Circle Awards.

Tower received the top award, the Gold Crown, which is awarded to the top four yearbooks in the nation.

Competing consistently since 1983, Tower has only received this award one other time for the 1989 yearbook.

Laura Widmer, adviser for student publications, said they knew they were up for either a Silver or Gold Crown award, but they were glad to receive the top honor.

"We've received Silver Crowns in the past, but it's nice to get that gold one in, and being named one of the four best in the country is quite an honor," Widmer said.

Tower has also been nominated one of 14 yearbooks as a Pacemaker finalist, which will be in the Fall of 1997. Awards will be given to the top six winners.

Heartland View also received awards for work on articles, typography and spread design.

After winning many awards, student publications hopes to continue to strive in their work for future recognition.

Cooke said although the awards are a satisfying honor, they hope to just provide a good publication for Northwest.

"I don't think we write anything just thinking in the back of our mind this could be a great award for us," Cooke said.

"We should always be thinking what is best for our reader."

TKEs purchase land adjacent to campus

by Jacob DiPietro
Chief Reporter

The members of Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity have picked up the pieces of their old house at 222 West Cooper and moved on — to the 500 block of Ninth Street to be exact.

Nearly four months after the TKE house caught fire and destroyed the third and second floors, the chapter has bought a 2.34 acre plot of land to build a new house.

Although the chapter has bought land for their house, they still have a lot of work to do before they can start constructing it.

Chapter treasurer, Jason Klindt, said the bulk of the money to fund a new house will be collected from the alumni.

Although an alumni fund-raising chair has not yet been named, Klindt said the chapter is looking to move steadily ahead.

"We need to start as soon as possible, yet stay realistic," Klindt said. "Which means we are going to start May 1, but hopefully in the summer or fall sometime."

While the chapter is unsure when they can officially break ground, Larry Apple TKE Board of Trustees president, said it is clear why the chapter chose that land.

"The reason we bought this particular ground was the proximity to the University and zoning," Apple said. "It's zoned for multi-family housing."

Before the chapter could purchase the land, however, several environmental tests were conducted. Apple said the chapter had a company from Kansas City come up and examine the property.

"We had an environmental survey done concerning any hazardous materials, seeing as it was in fact railroad ground," Apple said. "And there was a MFA building out behind that stored fertilizer at one time so we had a complete environmental work-up done."

Since the fire, the fraternity has rented a 3,000 square foot studio apartment on 108 West Fifth Street. The tentative new house plans call for over an 8,000 square foot house costing a over half a million dollars.

While the chapter is still without a house, TKE Alumni adviser Russ Northup said in a press release that he thinks the active members are committed to unity.

"I think the chapter is stronger," Northup said. "The support and communication has been outstanding from the active chapter."

FOR THE LOVE OF SPORTS

Athletic director retires after 20 years

by Ruby Dittmer
Community News Editor

His dream was to be the head basketball coach of his alma mater, and after 28 years in Maryville most of these dreams have been fulfilled.

This plan was once a dream of Maryville R-II Athletic Director and Washington Middle School Assistant Principal Charles "Chuck" Goff. Goff will retire at the end of June after contributing more than 25 years to the school district.

Goff was born in Grant City, where he earned his secondary education. During those years, he participated in football, basketball and track. He graduated from what is now Worth County R-III High School in 1956.

Following high school, Goff came to Northwest, and he played varsity basketball for all four years of his academic career. Upon graduation in the spring of 1960, Goff was hired by the Odessa, school district to teach industrial arts and driver's education. He was also the head basketball coach and the assistant football coach.

Following his own hometown superintendent, he moved to Mound City, a place he taught and coached at for four years. During his first year, he was the physical education, driver's education teacher and the assistant football coach.

For the next three years, Goff led the football team and during his first year of coaching he led the Panthers to their first undefeated football season.

"That was one of the biggest highlights of my career," Goff said. "It was a great feeling, but I was under a lot of pressure. It was lots of fun. I still have lots of good memories."

The state playoffs system had not been introduced to Missouri high school athletics at that time, so there were no championship games. Goff said the playoffs system was not introduced until 1962, so therefore his team did not have the opportunity to continue its voyage.

Maryville R-II Athletic Director and Washington Middle School Assistant Principal Chuck Goff spends a Wednesday morning at the middle school. He will retire in June after 28 years of service to the district. Goff said one highlight of his career was when as head coach, his football team had an undefeated season.

He resigned from teaching at Mound City and decided to get out of education.

"I had been teaching for five years," Goff said. "I didn't know whether or not if this was what I wanted to do. I had a chance to sell school buses so I did it."

The school bus selling stint lasted years until Goff decided that the business was not for him. He had two small children at the time and wanted to be able to be at home and spend time with them.

He re-entered the teaching world in Moberly, where once again he followed his hometown superintendent. He was the assistant football and basketball coach.

He moved to Maryville after the 1969 school year. It was an opportunity to move back closer to his and his wife's hometown. Maryville represented Goff's family and friends, which is why he moved back.

He began as career at Maryville as the head football coach, the assistant basketball coach and the driver's education teacher. Throughout his career, he also taught industrial arts, physical education and spent three years in the technical school teaching a buildings and grounds class.

He became athletic director at the beginning of the 1976-77 school year. For the next 20 years, it became his livelihood. Twelve years into his career he became the assistant Washington Middle School principal.

Goff said kids have changed throughout his career. He noted the change in family lifestyles and now in most families both parents work and most of the kids also work in order to be able to purchase cars.

"One of the things I've seen is kids not wanting to put out a lot of effort to become greater," Goff said. "Work ethics are not what they used to be. I don't think that I have gotten where I am today by sitting around and doing nothing."

Goff, who was born at the end of the Great Depression, said he is very high on the work ethic and has his own philosophy on life.

"The quote I've always liked and it's probably my own quote," Goff said. "When it's time to work we work and we work hard, and when it's time to play we play and we play hard."

Goff said he has fulfilled what he has wanted to do in his career and he has accomplished many things in the past 20 years.

Goff said athletics are the other part of academics. He said kids can learn team work, cooperation, how to get along with others and work ethics through athletics.

Upon his retirement, he plans to spend time with his grandchildren.

When it's time to work, we work hard, and when it's time to play, we play hard. It's my own personal philosophy."

Walk set for Saturday

Mid-America chapter preps to fight disease with annual fund-raiser

by Chera Prideaux
Assistant Community News Editor

Living with an incurable disease is a challenge for those who suffer from them. The seventh-annual Multiple Sclerosis Society Walk is for anyone who wants to help fund the search for a cure. The walk will take place at more than 420 locations across the nation — including Maryville.

The walk will be at 9 a.m. Saturday at Maryville High School with registration at 8 a.m. Anyone who is interested can still register on Saturday morning.

The participants will have a choice of walking either three or six miles.

More than 100 people in Maryville will participate in the walk. Deb Raus-Coffey, president of the Business and Professional Women chapter in Maryville, said the BPW decided to sponsor the event to recognize and support Janel Phipps, a member who is affected by the disease.

"It's unbelievable," Raus-Coffey said. "I think people just realize it is a great cause."

Last year, the Mid-America chapter raised $420,000 for the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, almost $11,000 of that was raised in Maryville. The walk itself raised $5,877 and $5,700 in donations.

The goal is to raise $125 per walker this year. Walkers raise money by collecting pledges from other individuals.

Of the money raised, 60 percent will go to the Mid-America outreach area funding equipment, education, emergency assistance, support groups and other chapter services. The other 40 percent will fund the national research for the cure.

"There is still no cure," Raus-Coffey said. "They are getting closer every day."

The Mid-America Chapter of the National MS Society serves about 350 people affected by the disease and their families in northwest Missouri.

Teams of four or more will be accepted and eligible for team awards. Teams and individuals can earn prizes including a T-shirt for every walker raising $75 or more.

The grand prize is two free round-trip airline tickets to Orlando, Fla. Those interested in participating, donating or sponsoring a walker can contact Raus-Coffey at 582-2151.

Volunteers are still needed to help with registration, clean up, food service and hosting rest stops.

Women capture 1st, while men finish 5th

by Wendy Broker
Chief Reporter

While most of us stayed in the warmth and dryness of our homes, several track athletes and fans braved the wind, rain and cold at the Northwest Invitational Saturday.

The women came through despite the weather, to rack up 200.33 points and take first place overall as a team.

The women took seven first-place finishes, and several more in the top six. Junior Misty Campbell finished the meet with not only a first place in the high jump, but also a first in the javelin. Junior Julie Humphreys was also busy racking up the top finishes, with first places in the discus and the hammer and a third in the shot put. Her throws in the discus and shot put provisionally qualified her for nationals.

Sophomore Brandy Haan also picked up two first places in the 100-meter dash and the 200-meter dash. Sophomore Jennifer Griffen recorded the final first place for the 'Cats in the long jump. Senior Heidi Metz placed second in the 1,500-meter run and third in the 3,000-meter run. Junior Dana Luke placed second in the 10,000-meter run and the 4x100 relay team of junior Amy Allen, freshman Tami Kielman, junior Shannon Torti and Haan did as well.

Ron DeShon, women's head coach, said he was pleased overall with the women's performance at the meet.

"We ran as well as expected considering the weather," DeShon said. "We did what we had to do to win the meet. We had the opportunity to, it was just making sure we did it."

DeShon said the meet was not only a success as a result of the new facilities and the talent of those who competed, but attributed some of it to volunteers who made it possible.

"A lot of people aided in the success of the meet," he said. "It wasn't just because of the athletes. It was the assistant football and baseball coaches, and the students who stood in the elements without a break. They are the ones who made the meet look good, not just the facility. These people volunteered their time to make the meet possible."

The team will face strong competition at the Emporia Division II Challenge Saturday, DeShon said.

"This is the biggest meet we will attend as a team this year," he said. "There will be some extremely talented programs there. This will give us the opportunity to run against the best. It will be hard to win; kind of like a mini-nationals."

The men also braved the weather in search of top finishes, but came up a little short of original expectations, with fifth overall and fewer top finishes than expected.

Rich Alsop, head men's coach, said the weather was a small factor in the imperfect performances.

"We didn't embarrass ourselves,"

Alsop said. "We just didn't really step it up and perform to our capabilities. No one single person can be blamed for it, we just didn't put all the little things together."

Highlights in the men's dreary day included first-place finishes by freshman Aaron Becker in the shot put and the 4x400 relay team consisting of juniors Ben Grojean, Ben Fields and Jason Yoo and sophomore Dave Sempek.

Sophomore Brian Cornelius placed second in the 10,000-meter run as did junior Chad Sutton in the high jump. Junior Damon Alsop placed second as well in the javelin.

Despite the weather, Grojean and Yoo also placed fifth in the 200-meter dash and 400-meter run, respectively. Aaron Grier took sixth in the pole vault, as did sophomore Corey Parks in the 3,000-meter Steeplechase. Freshmen Rob Schuett and Bryan Thornburg placed seventh in the pole vault and 10,000-meter run, respectively. Junior Don Ferree also finished in the top eight in the 5,000-meter run.

The men will also send a team to Emporia Saturday, Alsop said.

"It will be great competition, and there is no reason to intimidate some of the freshmen, so not everyone is going," he said. "It is a national caliber meet in the middle of the season."

Opening day feelings run high with win

Colin McDonough

I spent Monday at the ol' ballpark and it sparked my desire for baseball to be back.

Just being at Kauffman Stadium with all the other 40,051 people gave me goosebumps all over throughout the game. What a special occasion opening day is.

From the ceremonial first pitch to the unveiling of the three retired numbers out on the centerfield scoreboard — I loved it all.

Obviously if you are a Royals fan, you love George Brett, but it was also special to see the late Dick Howser's number retired along with one of the game's greatest second basemen — Frank White.

Those three people will live long in Royals fans' hearts because they were the backbone of the 1985 World Champion Kansas City Royals.

Another part of the ballpark that I enjoyed was just the pure smell of it. From the ballpark frank to the polish sausage to the peanuts to the beer. You just can't beat the smell of a baseball stadium.

Then to hear the cheers when the home team gets a hit or makes a sensational diving catch in right field is a great feeling.

To listen to the crowd cheer the opposing players when they had their turn at bat, especially the crowd members who did not enjoy seeing Roberto Alomar. I'm sorry but most of the things I heard are too explicit to print, but I'm sure you all have an imagination.

As the score stood even, you could feel the pressure build as the home team wanted to win so badly on opening day.

As the teams headed into the top of the ninth, the Royals held a slim 5-4 advantage, but a two-out rally for the tying run quieted the crowd.

The Royals obliged every youngster's wish when Kansas City defeated the Baltimore Orioles 6-5 with a sacrifice fly to score the winning run and just beat the tag. What a feeling.

Sometimes you just can't beat it.

Cagers sign five prospects for next year

The Northwest men's basketball team signed four prospects, while the women signed one Wednesday once the signing season started.

Amy Coy, a 6-foot forward from Benton High School signed a national letter of intent to play for Northwest under head coach Wayne Winstead.

Coy was the team's top scorer at 19.0 points and led the team with 7.0 rebounds.

The men's team also took advantage of signing day by inking Chris Brochers of Blue Springs High School, Jason Bass of Blue Valley North High School and Chevist Johnson and Joey Maggett of Omaha North High School.

Brochers is a 6-7 center, who averaged 16 points per game. Bass is a 6-7 forward, who averaged 13.5 points per contest. Johnson is a 5-9 point guard, who averaged 9 points a game. Maggett is a 6-5 swingman who averaged 16 points per game.

Rain, cold weather postpone week's worth of softball games

by Brian Brozyna
Missourian Staff

Both cold weather and a rainout have postponed and cancelled games for the women's softball team over the past week.

MIAA Weekend I in Shawnee, Kan., was rained out this past weekend and Tuesday's doubleheader against Missouri Western State College has been postponed until 3 p.m., April 17, at the University softball field.

Junior first baseman Sue-Ann Zeiger said not playing this week disrupts the play of the team.

"I think it's a disadvantage," Zeiger said. "You want to keep the same level of intensity at this time of the season."

Head coach Pam Knox said the weather delays give the team a chance to work on its defense.

"We understand that in order to win, we need to cut down on our mistakes," Knox said.

"We understand that in order to win we need to cut down on our mistakes."

Pam Knox, softball coach

Smith is a perfect 17-17 in stolen base attempts, already tying the record for steals in a season by senior center fielder Kelly Randles. She also leads the team with a .388 batting average. Urquhart leads the team with 17 RBI, followed by freshman shortstop Sara Moss, who has 14.

Anslay has a 5-7 record on the mound but a 1.88 ERA. Freshman pitcher Stacy Neis is 9-5 with a 2.83 ERA.

As a team, the 'Cats are hitting .277 and has a .921 fielding average. Zeiger said the team has come together and everyone contributes.

"There's not one dominant player," Zeiger said. "Our level of play is the same at each position and throughout the lineup."

The team will try to build on its turnaround and resume play today with a doubleheader at Morningside College.

Knox said Tuesday's doubleheader against 16-6 Central Missouri State University, who is first in the conference with a 4-0 record, will be big games.

"It's going to be a dogfight," Knox said. "They're going to be great games."

Netters continue to dominate opponents

by Colin McDonough
University Sports Editor

The men's and women's tennis teams continue to defeat all competitors while completing another perfect week.

The women's squad won all four of its matches to improve to 18-1 overall this season. The women have won 15 consecutive matches and are unblemished in the MIAA with a mark of 5-0.

Mankato State University was the only school to take a single match point against the Bearcat women, but they were still handled easily 8-1 last Friday.

Missouri Southern State College and Southwest Baptist left the court against the Bearcats without being able to win a single match last Friday and Sunday.

Sophomore Yasmine Osborn continued her dominance as well with three more impressive wins moving her to 16-2 on the season.

Sophomore Iva Kutlova earned three wins as well and improved her season record to 14-3. Senior Maria Groumoutis has been equally impressive this season with a match mark of 15-2.

Kutlova and Osborn have teamed up to be a formidable duo in doubles. They have reached a mark of 17-2 in the No. 1 doubles position.

The men were not quite as dominant as the women but were able to go through the week with a mark of

3-0, with victories over Emporia State University, Mankato State and Southwest Baptist.

Southwest Baptist proved to be the toughest match for the men but Northwest was able to pull out the victory, 5-4.

The Bearcats have a mark of 13-4 overall and a record of 3-0 in the MIAA.

Senior Nick McFee leads the men's squad in total number of victories with nine.

Senior Trystan Crook comes in a close second with eight triumphs against only one setback.

Ricardo Aguirre and McFee have teamed up to capture the best record in the doubles competition with a mark of 5-0.

Bearcats, Lincoln split doubleheader

By Chad Sypkens
Missourian Staff

Cold weather didn't keep the baseball team off the diamond like rain did last weekend as the 'Cats went 2-1 on the week, raising their record to 13-18 overall.

A trip to Lincoln on Wednesday brought the 'Cats a split with the Blue Tigers.

The 'Cats jumped off to a quick start in the first game scoring four runs in the first and went on to win the game 8-5.

Doug Clark raised his record to 4-0 as he pitched four innings, striking out four. Mark Gutkowski came in on relief to pick up save number two.

First baseman Jay Hearn had two hits, including a home run, and joined left fielder Rusty Lashley and second baseman Sean Smith as all three drove in two runs respectively.

The two teams switched places in the second game of the doubleheader as Lincoln countered the two runs scored by the 'Cats in the first inning with five in the second and added three more in the fifth inning and went on to complete the split, defeating the 'Cats, 8-3.

The 'Cats managed only four hits in the nightcap as Hearn continued to pick up the slack and belted his club high sixth home run of the year and second of the day. Hearn also drove in two runs, as he leads the team in that category as well with 28.

The 'Cats scored five runs in the eighth inning and added an insurance run in the ninth in a come-from-behind conference win Monday over Missouri Western, 10-8.

The 'Cats improved their conference record to 4-9, placing them in the No. 7 position in the conference. The top eight teams qualify for the MIAA Tournament.

Designated hitter Chad Crain delivered a two-run double in the decisive eighth inning in which the 'Cats scored five runs on three consecutive errors by the Griffons.

"We played well against the Griffons and hopefully we have turned things around," Hearn said. "Hollister did a great job even though he didn't get the win and I was glad to see Colby come back after he had problems with his throwing shoulder last week."

Track teams start with victories

by Wendy Broker
Chief Reporter

The first steps on the track were successful ones for the Maryville High School track teams this season.

The boys' team, predominantly underclassmen, placed first out of four schools in its first meet this year Thursday at home.

Mike Thompson, boys' head coach, said he has high expectations for the season and the team has not failed to meet them yet.

"Our first meet proved my thoughts," Thompson said. "The boys had outstanding times against good competition."

Senior T.J. Hennegin, along with 11

other 'Hounds, picked up first-place honors. Hennegin placed first in the 100-meter dash, broke the school record in the pole vault with a first-finish 4x200 and 4x100 relay teams.

Junior John Otte pulled in a few No. 1 slots for the 'Hounds as well in the 800-meter run, the triple jump and as part of the 4x800 and 4x400 relay teams. Sophomore Adam Otte also snagged four firsts, in the 400-meter run, 200-meter dash and on the 4x200 and 4x400 relay teams.

"In the pole vault, we have T.J. Hennegin, who broke the record in the pole vault at the meet, and junior Jeremy Lliteras right behind him," he said. "Times in middle distance races, long sprints and relays indicate we will be very competitive. Our success, however, will be determined by the marginal events — those we don't have stars in."

The team's next meet is Friday in Clarinda. The boys also have a meet Monday at home.

The girls' track team also opened the season at home last Thursday, placing first out of three teams.

Junior Jill Middleton picked up three of the 11 first places for the team in the high jump, triple jump and long jump. Senior Valerie Stiens also snagged a few firsts in the 800-meter run and 1,600-meter run, as did junior Abbey Lade in the 400-meter run and the discus. Lade also placed second in the shot put.

Jeff Martin, girls' head coach, said the team is progressing well.

"I was really pleased with their performance, especially for it being their first meet of the season," Martin said. "I wasn't sure how things would go with the majority of the team being freshmen, but I kind of like the direction we've taken so far. We are coming along a little better than last year when we were slowed down by injuries."

The girls next meet is on Monday at home against Bedford, Albany, Maysville and St. Joseph Central junior varsity team.

Kauffman's 25th year opens with win

by Chris Geinosky
Community Sports Editor

After a slow start to the season, the Royals have put things together with the help of their opening homestand, which started the 25th Anniversary of Kauffman Stadium.

Kansas City lost its first two games of the season to Baltimore, but the Royals have bounced back, winning three of their last five games.

Most sports media have the Cleveland Indians and Chicago White Sox as their preseason favorites to win the American League's Central Division, but with the acquisitions of Jay Bell, Jeff King, Chili Davis and Jermaine Dye, the Royals may have the opportunity to make some noise.

"We've made some changes, and we have quality people this year," Royals manager Bob Boone said. "We know we're talented, and now we'll find out how good we are."

The Royals are coming off of a

6-5 win in their home opener Monday, and a 4-2 extra-inning loss to the Orioles Wednesday night.

After Monday's game, Boone said what it will take for his team to be successful.

"Our bullpen will be the key," Boone said. "We'll go as far as the bullpen takes us. There's no 'Is' in the clubhouse right now, and everyone's playing for the same thing — to win."

Kansas City has the opportunity to move up in the division as eight of its next 10 games are at home.

The Royals will conclude their series with Baltimore tonight and will play host to Minnesota this weekend before heading to Toronto for a two-game series next week.

The Royals had plenty to celebrate during pregame ceremonies of the home opener. The Blue Ridge Cutoff overpass over Interstate 70 was officially renamed the George Brett Bridge.

Also before the game, Kansas City unveiled the team's three retired uniform numbers. The number five, worn by Brett, the number 10, worn by former manager Dick Howser, and the number 20, worn by Frank White, are displayed below the scoreboard in center field.

In a Royals' media release, vice president and general manager, said this will be a day to remember.

"Each of these three individuals contributed so greatly to the rich tradition of the Kansas City Royals,"

Robinson said. "Having their retired uniform numbers permanently displayed at Kauffman Stadium will serve as a lasting tribute to their wonderful accomplishments."

Brett, White and Howser's widow, Nancy Howser, each threw out a first pitch to start the game.

Brady Anderson, Baltimore's designated hitter, slides into home in the top of the first inning of the Royals' home opener at Kauffman Stadium. Anderson just beat the throw of Kansas City right fielder, Jermaine Dye. Anderson went 2-3 on the day with two runs scored and a solo home run in the top of the sixth inning. Despite Anderson's heroics, the Royals' Jeff King hit a sacrifice fly in the bottom of the ninth to plate the winning run.

Spoofhound netters scorch competition

by Chris Geinosky
Community Sports Editor

Maryville welcomed the Savannah Savages to town Tuesday, and the boys' tennis team greeted them with a 6-3 loss.

The win boosted the 'Hounds' overall record to 2-0 and their Midland Empire Conference mark to 2-0 as well.

Head coach

P.K. Krokstrom said the team has performed well so far this season but thinks there is more in store.

"We're looking good, but I don't think we've seen our best tennis yet," Krokstrom said. "This is a team that has the potential to take it all. Everyone's dedicated, and now they believe they can win the district."

Four of Maryville's six singles players started the 'Hounds on the right foot and won. Deno Groumoutis downed Adam Aderton 8-1, and Jeremy Gaa won 8-2 while Ross Pry and Nate Mayes both picked up victories for the 'Hounds.

In doubles play, Maryville won two of the three matches. Groumoutis and Nick Ferguson teamed up for an 8-6 win, and Gentry Martin and David Neustadter won 8-4. Junior varsity winners included Jamie Loch, Yasene Almuttar, Chris Robertson and Doug Lewis.

Maryville opened the season last Thursday and the Spoofhounds dominated all aspects of the meet.

The 'Hounds traveled to St. Joseph and blanked Lafayette High School 9-0.

In singles play, Groumoutis, Martin, Neustadter, Gaa and Pry each shut out their opponents 8-0. Mayes was the lone 'Hound to lose a game but took the decision 8-1.

Doubles was more of the same for Maryville as all three teams paired up for 8-0 victories.

In junior varsity play, Shawn King, Loch, Matt Walker, Dan Walter and Ben Gille were victorious.

Maryville's meet against LeBlond High School Tuesday was canceled because of cold weather.

The 'Hounds will take to hard courts this afternoon and will attempt to continue their undefeated season when they play host to Benton High School at the University tennis courts.

"This is a team that has the potential to take it all. Everyone's dedicated, and now they believe they can win the district."

Linksters fall to Savannah, drop 3rd consecutive meet

by Scott Summers
Chief Reporter

The Maryville boys' golf team hit the links at Mozingo Golf Course in search of its first victory of the season against Savannah on Monday but could not overcome the Savages.

The Spoofhounds were beaten by 15 strokes, losing 164-179. Individually, freshman Marty Prokes led the Spoofhounds, shooting a six-over-par 42 at the nine-hole event.

Junior Tylor Hardy and freshman Jesmin Ehlers finished only three shots behind Prokes, each shooting 45 during the round. Sophomore John Throener rounded out Maryville's team score, finishing with a 47.

The junior varsity team also lost its first home match of the season, falling to Savannah by six strokes, 183-189.

Senior Tim Espey led the 'Hounds with his nine-hole total of 43.

The Maryville varsity golfers lost a match to Lafayette last Thursday, finishing with a team total of 200, which was 20 strokes off the lead.

Throener led the Spoofhounds, shooting a nine-hole 48 during the match.

The Spoofhounds will take on Benton High School at 4 p.m. Thursday at Mozingo.

Cold weather puts damper on ballgames

by Scott Summers
Chief Reporter

The Spoofhounds had no more than started their season when the weather took a turn for the worst, forcing the boys' of summer back indoors for at least a week.

The Spoofhounds, 2-1 overall and 1-0 in Midland Empire Conference play, were just beginning to fire on all cylinders when the engine froze.

Lohafer is disappointed that his team has not played since April 1, but he knows the 'Hounds will have to wait out the weather.

"It's like going back to the first ballgame again since we haven't played for a whole week," Lohafer said. "We're back to square one."

Before temperatures plummeted, Maryville had destroyed LeBlond in a 13-5 victory, chalking up 11 hits.

The Spoofhounds' next game is 5 p.m. Thursday at Benton High School.

Girls track team earns top finish

by Wendy Broker
Chief Reporter

The girls of the Maryville track team competed in a freshmen meet at home Tuesday.

Melissa Myers, Meredith Wurm and Jessica Gage were among the top finishers in the meet.

Myers placed first in the two-mile run. The mile medley relay team of Jennifer Barnann, Angie Schuster, Adriane Hunt and Myers also placed first.

Myers received second place in the mile run. Wurm placed second in the 100-meter and 300-meter hurdles and was on the second place 4x100 relay team.

Gage earned a second place finish in the 800-meter run and third in the mile run. Gage, Myers, Jennifer Easton and Amy Eckerson were on the third place two-mile relay team.

Northwest athlete earns MIAA athlete of week

Junior thrower Julie Humphreys was named MIAA women's field athlete of the week for two events at the Northwest Invitational on April 5.

In the discus, she had a toss of 142 feet and eight inches, to win the event. She was third in the shot put with a mark of 43-11. Both put her on the provisional list for the NCAA Division II Championships.

She also won the hammer throw with a toss of 136-1. She scored 26 points for the Bearcats as they won the team title.

'Cats' graduate assistant is finalist for scholarship

Cory Elifrits, a graduate assistant athletic trainer for Northwest, is one of the 11 Division II finalists for the 1997 Sears Directors' Cup Post-graduate Scholarships.

Her name will be placed on the final ballot, which is being sent to the Finalist Committee and the four winners will be notified on April 21.

Redd, Cummings earn MVP honors at banquet

Sophomore forward Matt Redd and junior point guard Pam Cummings of the Northwest men's and women's basketball teams were given the Henry P. Iba award for being named the most valuable players for the 1996-97 season at the annual winter sports banquet on Sunday, April 6.

Redd, an MIAA honorable mention, led the Bearcats in scoring at 9.9 points per game and rebounding at 6.2 rebounds per contest, which placed him ninth in the MIAA. He started 23 games at power forward and was one of the team's top shooters at 48.8 percent.

Cummings, who was named to the all-MIAA second-team, finished third in the nation in assists and 15th in the nation in steals. She is currently second on the school's all-time assist list with 582.

She started 26 games and averaged 7.8 points per game and 3.9 rebounds. She led the team with 86.4 average free throw percentage.

Kearns named to GTE academic all-America team

Northwest women's cross country runner junior Kathy Kearns was selected to the GTE academic all-American district team selected by the College Sports Information Directors of America.

The process will go to the national committee who will now vote for academic all-American honors. Results will be announced April 10.

Kearns, a three-time all-conference and all-region runner, holds a 3.87 grade point average as a dietetics major. She is a two-time all-MIAA academic selection and became the school's first-ever conference champion in cross country when she placed first at the 1996 MIAA cross country championships. She was also named an academic all-American by the National Cross Country Coaches Association this year.

Football team to open season with road games

The Northwest football team will open up the 1997 season with two road games, before opening MIAA play with its home opener against Missouri Southern State College for Agriculture Day at 1:30 p.m. on Sept. 20.

The Bearcats open the 1997 gridiron campaign on Thursday, Sept. 4 against Midwestern (Texas) State in a 7 p.m. kickoff. On Sept. 13, the Bearcats will take on Wayne State (Neb.) at noon.

The nine-game MIAA schedule has the Bearcats traveling to Missouri Western (9/27), Missouri-Rolla (10/11), Pittsburg State (10/25) and Emporia State (11/15). The remainder of the five-game home schedule feature Washburn (10/4) for Family Day, Southwest Baptist (10/18) for Homecoming, Central Missouri State (11/1) and Truman State (11/8).

The Bearcats, co-champions of the MIAA, went 11-2 last season and advanced to the NCAA's Elite Eight in the Division II playoffs, before losing to the national champion Northern Colorado, 27-26.

The 11 wins were the most in the school's history.

THE WEEK THAT ZEUS GOT LOOSE

Greek Week brings sororities and fraternities together for a celebration of fun, unity and games the gods would envy

New schedule extends week, participation

by Karen Conrad
Missourian Staff

The gods must be crazy, but Greek Week has extended for three more days this year.

Instead of just a weekend, the week-long celebration will include new events such as a free-throw contest, softball and sand volleyball tournaments, a motivational speaker Monday night and a Greek Feast.

"This gives us a chance to refocus what Greek Week should be about and make it a whole week of fun instead of one day of games," Kerry Wells, Greek Week co-chair, said. "Greek Week was becoming a habit every year, and we want enthusiasm."

The purpose of Greek Week is to focus on Greek unity, develop the philanthropy and community service and add academic leadership. With a full week, more time can be spent on the goals.

"As our Greek system grows, so does our activities such as Greek Week," Wells said. "The purpose is to enhance the relation between fraternities and sororities and increase campus and community involvement."

Greeks will devote three days of community service through collecting towels and competing in a compact disc war. All the money raised will buy new dog cages for the new Nodaway County Humane Society.

"It will give us a chance to extend our community service by providing four or five opportunities to help the Humane Society," Wells said.

The work includes painting inside and outside the building, landscaping and cleaning the cages.

"By doing something everyday, a lot more can be accomplished," Lynn Moloney, vice president of promotions, said. "This year we are making an effort to help the community more."

Overall, extending Greek Week will not only benefit the Greek community, but help Maryville as well.

"I think it is better to have it for a full week so it gives more people a chance to get involved," Dawn Stritzel, Greek Week committee member, said.

Theta strengthens Greek community

by Jackie Tegen
Missourian Staff

The waves of colored shirts will jump and sing in the air. The screams of different organizations will ring loud in the breeze. The fraternities. The sororities. Even a welcome combination of both.

Competition between the Greek organizations at Northwest is usually intense during Greek Week as fraternities and sororities battle for points during games, Greek Sing and philanthropy, but the Theta Chapter reflects the true definition of Greek Week.

The purpose of Greek Week is to enhance the relationships between fraternities and sororities and to work toward a common goal of academics, programing and community service.

This will be the second year for Theta, an organization made up of select sorority and fraternity members.

In its first year, Theta proved it was a needed addition to traditional Greek Week groups.

The idea — innovative. The task — simple. Theta set out to prove that all members from the Greek community could get along and work together participating in the Greek song and Greek games.

But times are a changing and Theta is growing. Planning started with a new mission statement, new bylaws and a goal of being more involved. Theta is making an impact that even the gods won't forget.

"Theta was developed for an all-Greek purpose last year," Lynn Moloney, vice president of promotions, said. "It was so new it didn't get developed as much as the Greek Week chairs wanted. This year their (Greek Week chairs) goal was to make sure we develop Theta enough and make it recognized and beneficial enough to be something done every year from now on."

The best way for Theta members to do this is to show what they got. The Theta chapter will participate in every activity with the exception of the chariot race, tricycle race and the softball games. But unlike other organizations, Theta doesn't stop there.

On Saturday, Theta members will serve at the Greek Feast and walking dogs as part of their philanthropy. Given how many benefit from the Greek community, it's ironic to think the members benefit more.

"I get to be with other chapters and meet a lot of people that normally I wouldn't meet except for Theta," Theta member Dwayne Saucier said. "You get to know people and actually participate with people from other fraternities and sororities."

Members went through an application process that asked about setting aside differences and why the applicants think they can represent the chapter well. After looking through the applications, the committee selects the 40-member chapter to represent Theta.

"We are representing the same thing even though we are different organizations," Saucier said.

A feeling of total Greek unity is the highest goal the group hopes to convey to the Greek community.

"I think it shows that the Greek community as a whole can work together, that they don't have to separate chapters all the time and that we do want to interact and work for common goals during Greek Week, which is the whole purpose of Greek Week, to strengthen the Greek community," Moloney said.

After this year's Greek Week, Theta will leave behind more than a memory of the gray shirts jumping, laughing and screaming with everyone — they will represent the memory of the bond the Greek community shares.

Carded: A lost Bearcat Card can spell trouble if you don't report it

T

Story by Adam
Buckley

he new Bearcat card and your run-of-the-mill credit card have two things in common — you can make purchases with both, and they can cause endless headaches. Is the new Bearcat card doing as well as the previous one, or are there some problems that need to be looked into?

Some people believe there are several problems.

One thing that students must remember about the card is that it is very similar to a credit card.

The money on it can be spent by anyone who lays their little hands on it, so it has to be protected at all times.

"I lost the card on a Monday night (in mid February) around 11:30 p.m. because I had just taken it out to show someone how it had a crack down the middle," geography major Randy Wishon said. "I ran back to Phillips Hall from North Complex, and it must have fallen out between there and home."

Wishon said he searched his room and his roommate's van, hoping to find the card, but wasn't successful.

After skipping class the next day to look for it, he finally went to the ID office to report it lost.

"After I got a new card, I went down to use it in the Deli, thinking I had around $130, but the cashier said I only had around $40," Wishon said.

The next day, Wishon went to the ID office to obtain a printout of the exact purchases made with the card.

He discovered that someone had a field day with his card in the dining area.

"They spent over $50 at Sweets 'N' Treats, and about $30 all together at the pretzel place," Wishon said. "None at the bookstore."

The ID office said he should have reported it sooner, but because he had previously lost it for only an hour or two, Wishon thought it would turn up.

"I know it was my responsibility to keep track of my card, but there's something funny when almost $50 is spent at one time at one place," Wishon said.

After experiencing the run-around for the first couple of days, and being asked if he was sure it wasn't his roommate who was the actual thief, Wishon said the end result was that the University refused to refund the lost money, and to purchase a new card.

Although it is too late for Wishon, the lesson to learn is that if your card is lost — report it. That way, it can be turned off before anyone has a chance to use it without your approval.

Barry Beacom, cash manager for dining services, said the quicker you inform the ID office, the safer your money will be.

"As soon as a student knows they are missing their card, they should go to the ID office and have it shut off," Beacom said.

"That protects them from anyone using their card. If they find it, they can have it turned back on."

Although it can be frustrating

for the person it happens to, Beacom doesn't see this occurrence as too big of a problem.

"In the eight and a half years I've been here, this is the third incident that I know of where a card has been stolen," Beacom said.

"The previous two happened to be roommates that did it to their roommates."

Even though the cards have individual pictures on them, along with names, they aren't 100 percent safe from other people using them.

Beacom said if a person wants to let a friend use his or her card, that's OK, as long as the other person lets the cashier know who the person is that has the card.

Otherwise, if the person is caught using the card without permission, it is confiscated, and the person is written up.

Employees have found that the new card makes it hard to guarantee the validity of who is actually using it because of the way the card looks.

Kathy Rhynes, an employee at Dunkin' Donuts, believes the cards have their drawbacks.

"The pictures are too small and so are the names, and it's hard for us, as clerks, to take time to actually study it," Rhynes said. "Sometimes we're still not sure if the right person is using it, because you can't go by the pictures on all of them. It's a definite problem."

Another problem is time. Rhynes said this is something they don't have enough of when it comes to the process of checking each card to make sure the user matches up with the picture.

The dining area isn't the only place that has had some problems with Bearcat cards. The bookstore has had its share also.

Kent Marlow, manager of the Bearcat Bookstore, said its process is a little more strict when it comes to using the Bearcat card for purchasing items.

When a customer uses the card to charge a purchase to an account, he or she must let the cashier look at the card, and then they must sign the receipt, he said.

However, problems still arise. Just recently, an incident occurred where a student forged a signature and disciplinary action was taken, Marlow said.

In the case of the food service area, however, Marlow doesn't think this process would work well.

Food service gets more customers than the bookstore, and having everyone sign their names would take longer than students would tolerate, he said.

In addition to the problem of cards being stolen, many on campus, including Wishon, might recognize another problem — the degradation of the cards.

Rhynes sees a lot of students and faculty come through the line at Dunkin' Donuts, and she has seen quite a few cards that are in bad condition.

"The cards break easily," Rhynes said. "They usually start around the picture area, and then break in half from there."

The new Bearcat cards have been around for almost a year.

Although some would agree that they are much nicer to look at, they also have a darker side to them.

Weekly Wanderer finds answers to construction worker's paradise

C'mon now, everybody, sing it — "Construction junction, what's your function? Construction junction, what's your function?"

Yes, the school is turning into a construction worker's paradise. Northwest is the only campus in the world where you can a) get to tear up a former pretty campus, b) take asbestos out of buildings and c) get to park wherever you want without a parking ticket. I wonder if Campus Safety has tried to ticket any backhoes in the past couple of months?

Being the quality-happy campus that we are, it is good that administrators are helping to see that students get their exercise as they walk blocks out of the way just to end up in their next class. Your Man has even felt the benefits of walking around orange snow fences as I think even I have shedded a few pounds in the process of going to class.

Therefore, I have an idea about things that could be done to speed up the construction.

1) I need the help of my friends in the Administration Building. The rich folks who work in "The Palace." You see, these are the money people around here. Without them, no plan can work or even take place.

2) Your Man needs a little love from the guys and gals who represent us over in Student Senate land. Even though their power is somewhat unknown to the majority of Northwest, I was happy to see them send out questionnaires about off campus living conditions. It was only something they have been talking about since my freshman year when the kids on Beverly Hills 90210 were entering high school.

3) I would also like to see the help of the Greeks. With Greek Week (actually a whole week this year, eh?) coming up in the very near future, your help is needed to replant the grounds around Colden Pond for your traditional canoe races and the sacrifice of the young sorority member into the demons of the depths of the pond.

4) Maybe most importantly is the King of Quality at Northwest. The man with the plan, University President Dean Hubbard. He is great. A master of vision toward the future. Don't get me wrong, an ice rink would be a great thing to have on campus and it would save trips for students in the winter to St. Joseph who want to ice skate. But how about some more parking instead? Which is more user friendly?

With these people's help, Your Man can turn this campus into the sea of green which it was only a short time ago. But I need the help and backing of these people who make Northwest what it is and myself something to write about each week.

Without them, Your Man would have not have gotten to where I am now and be what I am today, and keep me coming back for more tomorrow.

You see, the plan would call for around-the-clock working. Something the construction workers wouldn't go for, but it is time to restore this campus and return it to being a state-recognized arboretum.

No longer is the time for workers to sit and watch students walk by and have seemingly endless breaks. (Let me state that many of the people I am talking about I see on my way through the orange mazes to class and on a return trip, these same people haven't moved. It is not to say all of the workers are like this. If the Germans could have dug trenches this fast in World War II, it could have been a different outcome.) It is time for constant movement and completion of the project.

HEY! WHO GOT AHOLD OF MY COLUMN?

There must be another conspiracy in Maryville. I hope that Associated Press and the BBC doesn't get a hold of this story. Your Man wouldn't write all of this. I am a kinder and gentler Stroller.

In this short space, I would just like to say congratulations to the people of Maryville for passing a school bond.

It must be freezing in hell right now.

So all Your Man wants to know is who is going to head the committee to pick the light fixtures, sink and faucet parts, the door knobs, wall paints and coverings, paint styles and carpet colors?

The Stroller has been a tradition at Northwest since 1918.

The campaigning begins today and Northwest will start deciding next year's executive board.

Student Senate elections are from 8 a.m. April 17 to 4 p.m. April 18. Students can vote by logging into their VAX accounts and typing "vote" at the prompt.

A rules meeting will be at 5 p.m. today; after the meeting candidates can begin campaigning.

This year's election features new elements designed to benefit student senators.

"Student Senate is ... having a separate public relations chair who is a public relations major and not on senate working with our public relations committee to relieve some of the pressure of the senate public relations people," Jon Baker, English education major, said.

"She is basically designing the signs, but it is still our committee's responsibility to put the signs up."

One major difference in the voting this year is students will be able to vote for four class representatives and five on- or off-campus representatives, instead of just one in each category.

With the election a week away, some students said they had not heard anything about it yet.

"In past years, I've seen posters, read articles and heard about the elections from many sources," Jill Williams, public relations major, said.

"This year I haven't heard anything. There is a serious lack of publicity."

Candidates for president are Sarah Alexander, Kelly Ferguson and Angel Harris-Lewis.

Vice president candidates are Julie Bookless and Angel McAdams.

Secretary candidates are Camilla Geuy and Stephanie Puricelli and treasurer candidates are Curt Friedel and Devin Warrington.

The on-campus representative candidates are Jon Baker, Les Clark, Diarra Dunlap and Carrie Venable.

Off-campus representative candidates include Sara Azdell, Sarah Derks, David Douglass, Charice Douthat, Alethea Fale, Jennifer Ludwig, Dawn Hardymartin and Sam Scholten.

Sophomore class representative candidates are Les Clark, Marianne Miller, Kyle Niemann, Monica W. Smith, Carrie Venable, Heather Wardlow and Laurie Zimmerman.

Junior class representative candidates are Sara Azdell, Mark Bigelow and Jennifer Ludwig.

Senior class representative candidates are Sarah Derks, David Douglass, Charice Douthat, Diarra Dunlap, Dawn Hardymartin and Sam Scholten.

Reporter finds job after error in column

Daily Forum writer says he took the fall for mistake of 'much deeper problem'

by Jacob DiPietro
Chief Reporter

Despite losing his job at the Maryville Daily Forum, after allegation of possible libel, Shane Whitaker has moved to the Cameron Citizen Observer.

Whitaker was forced to resign March 31 after a person who is not employed by the Forum altered a column written by Sen. Sam Graves, R-Mo. The added line stated Graves only supports white males

Sen. Sam Graves

the Forum took.

Whitaker said he was surprised when Forum publisher Jerry Pye asked him to resign. However, Pye declined to comment. Whitaker said it was unfamiliar business practice for someone like himself to be asked to leave instead of someone with more responsibility in the company.

"For the lowest man on the totem pole to take the fall for a mistake of this proportion is new to me," Whitaker said.

Although Whitaker did "take the fall," he said the problem is with the organization.

"I am never the only one responsible for editing a page, including this one," Whitaker said. "...I have decided to bear the brunt of a much deeper problem with the organization."

Whitaker said he made sure the column was typed in early because he was leaving town, and he said he left the page and the original article on his desk in case there were any questions. Although Whitaker received national attention from the international media, Washington Post and Rush Limbaugh, he said he is not going to let this one incident stop his career.

"I am not going to let this be the downfall of my career," Whitaker said. "I'm much stronger than that."

Whitaker, a 1994 graduate of Northwest and a Forum reporter for over two years, starts his new job Thursday.

Water main accident causes shutdown

Many missed meals thanks to water loss during pipe break last week

by Lindsey Corey
Chief Reporter

The steam line project has forced students to find new routines, inside and outside the classroom.

A backhoe hit a broke steam line in two places last Thursday afternoon. The accident caused all the water west of North College Drive to be shut off. The Union, North-South Complex, Administration Building, Lamkin, the Aquatic Center and Martindale Gym were affected.

"We're sorry for the inconvenience," said Dave Gieseke, director of news and information. "It's like when the lights on campus go out or a tornado hits."

One of the breaks was noticed immediately by construction workers because it was visible from the construction area.

ARAMARK employees noticed that they weren't getting water, before it was officially announced to the rest of the campus.

"The students ended up suffering" Barry Beacom, ARAMARK cash operations manager, said. "A lot of people missed a meal."

The first break was patched in an hour and a half. When they brought the water back on-line, they realized there was another break.

"It caught us by surprise," Jeff Barlow, director of environmental services, said. "It could happen again because when we dig we only have general ideas of where the utilities are."

The second break was unexposed and took about five hours to repair because of all the digging. Repairs were finished around midnight.

"The workers did a good job," Barlow said. "The contractor and our own people stayed the entire time." As soon as ARAMARK employees got word of the problem, they shut down pop and yogurt machines and the walk-in coolers so motors would not burn up.

"We went into emergency mode," Beacom said. "I was at a loss, because we couldn't do anything. The prior one was scheduled."

They found the water for cleaning from the Conference Center and began closing food places. Freshens and Pretzel Logic and Smoothies were closed by 4 p.m. because they require water. World of Cuisine did not open for the evening meal. The Deli and Itza Pizza were closed at 7:30 p.m.

Sweets and Treats, Tower View and Cat's Commons were open their regular hours. Canned pop was sold in place of fountain beverages.

"All the dishes were dirty by the time we were done serving," Beacom said.

"We held off until we started running out of things," Beacom said. "It's a by-product of progress. We just have to live with it and deal with it the best we can."

An estimated $4,000 to $5,000 were lost in sales. "Because most of that was Aladine, it'll be spent at some point," Beacom said.

All the yogurt was lost and some things in the cooler were lost.

"We have several hundreds of dollars in lost product," Beacom said. "There's not going to be much more work around here so we're hoping for no more problems."

There was also some physical damage. When the water was brought back on-line a hot-water heater in the Administration Building's second floor ceiling caused a flood.

"It had drained and when the water hit the heating element, it blew it out," Barlow said.

The water heater will be removed and the restroom's heater will be used.

OurView OF THE UNIVERSITY

University must stay true to its promises

Lou Holtz, former Notre Dame head football coach, used to always prepare his team for a game. He was famous for under promising and over delivering results. In pregame press conferences he always tried to explain how good the other team was. Simply put — he mastered the art of delivering more than he promised.

Northwest, however, is doing the opposite. At this time last year, the University was promising classroom instruction would change with EC+.

This new program was supposed to open a whole new door in which instructors become more interactive in the education of their students. In addition, students could network with others, which allowed the instructor another way to introduce material.

Many students viewed this as an opportunity to get in on what the administration called a new groundbreaking program.

However, the University has since decided that EC+ is no longer a feasible program, so they decided to terminate it at the end of the school year. Thus leaving current EC+ students with a $2,000 computer.

EC+ instructor Greg Roper says he still believes the program could work if it were modified instead of done away with.

"The biggest drawback was lack of conference software, which would have enabled us to have real-time, on-screen discussions," Roper said.

However, Northwest is not trying to fix the present system. Now the latest bandwagon to jump on is EC97, which is a program that each residence hall room will receive a new personal computer to replace the old VAX machine. How can the University be so supportive of a program they haven't even tested yet?

More importantly, how will students know what kind of equipment will be available to them next year? Think of the track record they are following.

The University needs to learn from modest Holtz and at least deliver, if not over deliver, on promises, not only to the students, but also to the faculty.

We are concerned that the University will jump the gun again with the EC97 program. Programs need to be tested on a small scale, evaluated and implemented if everything is successful. The problem Northwest is facing again is throwing together a million dollar project with barely even any research or pilot projects started.

If the past is any indication of the future, then for the sake of the students, officials need to slow down the advertising campaign.

Students need to have their faith in the University reassured before they get their hopes up for new program which could become the next EC+.

Learning the true meaning of trust

Nicole Fuller

Growing up, people value what means most to them — love

What is the world coming to? What kind of people are we becoming? What will the next generation be?

Growing up you learn lessons in life and grow with those. Some things may be good and some may be bad. For example, learning not to steal, forming friendships and breaking promises and losing those friendships are just a few examples of the lessons in life that we must face.

Two things that are vital to what we learn in life is how to love and trust others — can someone love someone if they cannot trust them?

When you put your trust in someone you expect them to respect that trust no matter what.

I have learned that unless you absolutely and positively know the person, you cannot trust them until they can show you an equal trust through the actions that they portray.

Recently I have watched a good friend go through the struggle of trust. She put her trust in a person and believed that he would not break that between the two of them.

She was wrong, though. He betrayed that trust by breaking an understanding between the two and this proved that she could not trust him as a person.

It not only dealt with trusting him but also with a friendship and someone she could have faith in.

She also put her trust toward another good friend who let her down. How can a close friend betray the trust that friends have between each other?

The friendship a person has with someone else is a sacred bond between two people. When that bond is broken by distrust then there is no recognition of trust between the two unless the person can prove that they can be trusted again.

In the situation of love, I have watched my sister, Heather, learn how to love and have learned that the true meaning of what love is — not just what is on the outside but what counts is on the inside.

It just hit me the other day that she is moving on in life with love and is getting married May 3 to the man she loves and trusts.

But I know that I can still trust her to always be there for me when I need her the most or just need a shoulder to lean on or to cry on.

I also have put my own trust in Chris, my future brother-in-law, to always be there for her and to never hurt her in anyway. Sisters are always there to look out for each other.

I believe that I will never have to rethink my trust in Chris for he is a sweet and well-rounded individual and perfect for my sister.

Watching the two of them has shown me what love is really all about and not just sex. I have seen how they talk, how they respond to each other and how they love each other from the heart.

As I have said before, you must be able to trust someone before you can truly love them.

So don't let your guard down until you absolutely know that you can trust that person and never doubt for one second that they will break that trust.

OurView OF THE COMMUNITY

City needs to follow through with bond

Maryville residents cast their votes on April 1 for the seventh Maryville R-II School District Bond since 1993, but the only difference this year is that it passed.

We applaud the community's support of the school bond, but let's remember this is only the first step. Within the next few years, the community will need to support the passage of a handful of phases to make this project a long-term success.

The Maryville R-II School District divided the educational facilities master plan into three phases with the idea that the needs of the district are substantial. These phases specify the sequence in which the needs are anticipated to be proposed. All three phases in the plan need voter approval.

Passing by 61 percent, phase I includes the construction of a new middle school, as well as renovations to Maryville High School and Eugene Field Elementary School.

This improvement to the district is essential, and judging by the second-highest voter turnout, Maryville patrons agreed.

Now that the first phase has been approved, it is time to look and concentrate on phases II and III.

Phase I has already begun with voter approval and will be carried out by making some of the improvements needed by the district. Phase I includes a 57-cent debt service levy to pay off the $9.485 million bond issue over 20 years.

After phase I is completed, the next step is phase II, which also includes more needed improvements to the elementary and high schools. When this phase reaches the ballot box, it will include a debt service levy and/or a capital projects levy.

The final phase in this master plan is phase III. Phase III will include a high school improvement to provide an auditorium.

When it comes time to vote on this phase, it will include proceeds from a performing arts facility trust and refinancing the bond debt.

There is much work and effort that needs to happen to complete the educational facilities plan, but the success of this plan depends on the voters.

Now that the beginning of Phase I is complete, it is time for Maryville patrons to continue to show support for the district in the next two phases to help the district make the essential improvements needed.

Tragedy doesn't need any help from cults

We have moved out of March madness and into cult madness! What possesses these people to devote their precious lives to castration and suicide? I really don't want to criticize these people, but they are just a little weird. No — they are insane.

Who are these geniuses who wake up one day and think, "Hey, I am going to start a cult. We will one day join a space ship that will carry us to the next life by killing our earthly bodies when eating applesauce or pudding laced with an anti-seizure drug and drink vodka simultaneously?"

Where do they come from? I want to know. This whole situation is becoming a vicious circle. All the cults' practices vary, but all end in tragedy. Tragedy doesn't need any help. I'm telling you there's more than enough for everyone. Just thrive off the unplanned hardships and forget about the planned, bloody, murderous attempts to outdo the previous. Stop the madness.

Every time I hear about Charles Manson's parole hearing, I almost lose my lunch. This man admittedly killed people, for God's sake, he knowingly killed an unborn child (like I said, tragedy happens every day without any help) and he repeatedly has parole hearings.

Granted, the heaven's gate cult (I just can't dignify capitalizing the name of a cult, sorry) didn't murder anyone else, but they still killed life. For what — to join an alleged space craft hidden behind a comet?

All kinds of speculations are being made. Some say the members of the cult chose death over watching the movie "Heaven's Gate" for the 300th time.

Now, video store owners are asked to post warning signs about the movie.

Is the world really coming to an end? Will the "twelve monkeys" succeed in their mission? Do I want to die? I can only answer one of these questions. I DON'T WANT TO DIE!

Firing story incorrect

Dear Editor,
I am responding to the article concerning the resignation of Brent Sneed. I cannot comment on Brent's specific situation because of legal restrictions, but I can say that the Missourian incorrectly reported the basis for his release of employment.

When a situation arises questioning the effectiveness of an employee, consequences are very carefully considered. With a serious infraction such as assault, theft, deliberate dishonesty or other incident where an employee's trustworthiness has been compromised, release may be the most appropriate action.

Over the past five years, this has been the decision in a small number of cases. Some individuals chose to appeal the decision, but nothing was overturned. I say that out of conviction that I take such responsibility very seriously, confident when I recommend that action is the only recourse and in the best interests of the staff member and the community.

When the action is taken, we act responsibly to enable the employee to leave their position with as much dignity as possible; with no ill will on the part of our department. We do not force student employees to move off campus or cancel their board plan. The continuation of these contracts is at the staff member's discretion and their expense. It's important for the community and the staff member that transition off the staff happen quickly and we allow as much flexibility as possible in facilitating their move. In the past, we have relocated released staff members to temporary guest room housing to assist them in making off campus housing arrangements.

In terms of communication, our lines are always open and we employ a multitude of feedback channels regularly. Twice we have participated in a communication audit and implemented changes based on each report. A major opportunity for student feedback is coming the week of April 27 as the staff distributes the first annual Quality of Life Assessment (QLA). We hope you take the time to complete and return it. We truly care what you think.

If there are further questions regarding the fair employment practices of the Office of Residential Life or any issue you wish to offer comment, please contact our office.

Last column at University is final farewell

Dave Gleseke

Bidding an end to the campus and the Northwest Missourian

I like to think of this as my last hurrah with the Northwest Missourian. After 20 years of articles, photographs and columns, my "career" with this publication will effectively come to a close with this issue. It has been a great run.

Many of you may not know that I was once upon a time the editor of this illustrious newspaper. In fact, I was the editor the day the Administration Building burned in 1979. I also have served as photographer, ad salesman, circulation manager, sports editor and writer, movie and book reviewer and even wrote the Stroller a time or two.

In recent years, the Missourian has asked me from time to time to write a column. As I prepare to leave Northwest at the end of the year, they asked me if I would like to write one last time for the publication that started my career.

It's been a marvelous run for me at Northwest. I have been fortunate enough to be involved in so many projects and activities on campus that it's hard to remember all of them. I'm grateful for the opportunity to work at this institution — which I owe all to Bob Henry, my now retired former boss, who hired me first as the University's photographer and then later as the director of news and information.

Bob took a chance that I would pan out in this position. I'm sure I made Bob's life hell a couple of times over those 10 years that we worked together as I got involved in more and more things.

Thanks for the opportunity, Bob. In recent years, my interests on campus have changed. We've moved away from being strictly a news operation in the Office of Public Relations to one which is involved in virtually every area on campus.

And while that has made it tough at times, it has always made each day new and different. I think that's what I have loved the most about Northwest — the new challenges that every faculty and staff member face day in and day out here.

For me those new challenges have been organizing Homecoming, offering the best entertainment with Northwest Encore Performances, producing quality television and radio ads which encourage prospective students to look at attending Northwest, being involved with intercollegiate athletics and developing a World Wide Web site which stands out from the rest.

And while I may not have accomplished all these goals, I hope I have left a good enough foundation that my successor can come in and improve these programs.

It's hard to leave knowing that some of those goals haven't been finalized. It's also hard to leave with so many new and exciting things on the horizon for Northwest.

But it's also hard to leave the many friends and associates I have here on campus. But after virtually 20 years at the same place, it was time for my wife, Carole, and I to move along.

So it's with a heavy heart that I conclude my final contribution to the Northwest Missourian. I just hope some of the things we have started here continue long after this particular issue is history.

Dave Gleseke is the news and information director at Northwest.

Changing of season brings increased risks

Ron Brohammer

Summer can be full of fun with a little care and forethought

Even though Mother Nature appears to be having a (hopefully) last winter frolic, summer is just around the corner. Along with all the enjoyment and pleasure of summer comes an increased risk of accidents and injuries that often cost time, money and inflict undue pain and suffering. With just a little care and forethought, this can be prevented and our summer can be fun and enjoyable.

Summer often brings long driving trips and more crowded than usual highways. When travel planning, plan your trip well. Don't overextend yourself — i.e. don't try to cram too many miles into one day, about 350 miles should be the maximum per day, or you may suffer from fatigue and go to sleep at the wheel — not a good vacation. Make frequent rest stops and get out and walk around for just a few minutes; this can refresh you and help you stay alert. Always when driving expect the unexpected — watch out for the other driver and don't become complacent. Stay within the speed limit, and I believe, most importantly, always wear your seat belt properly aligned and fastened. There's a new caution now. If your vehicle is equipped with air bags, do not allow children or small adults to sit in the front seat. Some extra precautions are warranted. When children travel in cars with passenger-side air bags, children under 12 can be killed by the air bag. The back seat is the safest place for children. NEVER put a rear-facing child seat in the front. Sit as far back as possible from the airbag and ALWAYS use seat belts and child restraints. Finally, never drive when you are fatigued from a long day of "fun in the sun" or after consuming alcohol.

Summer activities also frequently involve the old barbecue grill. This innocuous piece of equipment also deserves respect. If you have a charcoal grill, never add fuel to the charcoal after the charcoal has been lit. This can result in eyebrow singeing flameups or even an explosion that may take the deck right off your house. Watch those little fingers around all grills; young children may not realize the kettle, drum, base, lid or whatever can burn badly. If you have a gas grill, make sure the hoses, connections, are tight and in good repair. Be very careful when lighting this type of grill. You can get explosions from this grill that can not only take off your deck, but maybe half the house, too. Always shut the gas off at the tank when you are finished using a gas grill.

Water safety is another critical area of concern for many of us. This has taken on a whole new level of importance since the development of Lake Mozingo. I'll bet there are many novice boaters in the area who just can't wait to get on our beautiful lake. Please get out there and enjoy it, BUT make sure you know the operating parameters of your boat and the rules of the lake. Never go on the lake without proper, approved life jackets for every person on the boat. If you or someone you know is fortunate enough to have a personal water craft (PWC), make sure to operate it with good judgement. Boats, both pontoon and ski, PWCs, and fishermen, water skiers and swimmers can never occupy the same space at the same time without a problem, — so always be vigilant. It won't be any fun to spend the summer in a hospital. Boats, like cars, should never be operated by anyone under the influence of alcohol.

There are a myriad of other summer activities that we, in this glorious land, can participate in.

I don't want to put a damper on anyone's activities, but remember, be careful; think about the consequences of your actions BEFORE you act; always consider the other person and finally, have a great, fun-filled summer.

Ron Brohammer is the assistant city manager/director of public works of Maryville. He is also the safety coordinator.

IT'S YOUR TURN

Do you trust the new EC97 program after what happened with EC+?

"No, I do not trust the EC97 program because just because the EC+ program, it will go away and it is just another way for this University to screw us out of more money."

Jealaine Vaccaro, English major

"I don't trust it because EC+ was supposed to be a big thing and look what happened with that."

Jana Van Maaren, psychology major

"I don't trust the new program because I don't think they have thought the plan through very well and haven't considered how it is going to affect everyone on campus."

Stephanie McKalg, accounting major

Curt Friedel, agricultural education major

"Yes I do because I feel like the EC+ program was helpful in seeing what will work, so this probably has a better chance of working."

Ray McGalla, psychology major

"I think we can trust the new EC97 program because as opposed to EC+, it's going to affect more students because it's a campus-wide program."

John Coffey, business management major

"THE MYSTERY OF EDWIN DROOD"

Cast members Lisa Scharfel (Wendy), Tiffany Leever (Beatrice) and Brian Bellof (the chairman) introduced the opening act of "The Mystery of Edwin Drood" by Charles Dickens. The performance is based on a novel that Dickens didn't finish, therefore the audience is left to determine the ending. The show will run April 17-20.

Audience to decide play's finale

by Stephanie Zellstra
Missourian Staff

Students will bring a Tony Award winning Broadway musical to the Mary Linn Performing Arts Center April 17-20, but don't think that if you see it once you've seen it all.

"The Mystery of Edwin Drood" will feature different endings every night, depending upon which of the 16 endings the audience chooses.

The show begins at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, April 17, and runs through a 2 p.m. matinee on Sunday, April 20.

"Drood" is a solve-it-yourself musical set in 19th century England. Based upon an unfinished novel by Charles Dickens, the play was half finished when Dickens died, so the audience is left to vote on 16 different possible endings.

The musical has something for everyone with dancing, singing and high drama. It is actually a play within a play; there are many things going on at once.

Audience participation is an important part of the musical.

With all the different aspects to the play, there has been a lot of cooperation. The music department, theater department and Encore Performances have put a great deal of effort into the production, said Charles

Schultz, professor of theater and director of the production.

"The production has been very demanding with the music and so forth and has challenged the talent pool," Schultz said. "The support I have gotten has been vital."

The cast is made up of 33 music and theater majors. It was cast in November with three auditions with rehearsals starting after break in January.

Tickets for the production are $7 for orchestra and $5 for balcony and are on sale from 8 a. m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday at the Student Services Center on the first floor of the Administration Building.

Publications garner numerous awards

Tower nationally named as one of top four books, Missourian 2nd in state

by Kathy Brocky
Missourian Staff

Student publications showed off their work at both state and national award levels.

At the national level, all three publications received awards from the Associated Collegiate Press and the Columbia Scholastic Press Association.

Last weekend at the Missouri College Media Association convention in Kansas City, both Tower yearbook and the Northwest Missourian were recognized for their achievements.

Tower competed and placed first in all but one category and also received the top award for Best Theme Development in the 1995-1996 yearbook. Amanda McManigal, editor in chief of Tower, said the award was a great honor for everyone who worked on the yearbook.

"It was very exciting for us because they were won by a lot of staffers," McManigal said. "It was nice to see other people on the editorial board being recognized for the hard work that they've put in."

In the newspaper competition, the Northwest Missourian placed second in the Division II category for Best Overall Newspaper and 1st place for In-Depth News Reporting for the story on parking fines at Northwest. Individual awards for photography, feature page and information graphics were won. Colleen Cooke, managing editor for the Missourian, said in the past, the Missourian had not received awards in many categories, but this year was much better.

"This year we took a lot more time to put together our entries," Cooke said. "In the past we've been kind of disappointed just because we know we did good work, but if we don't put together the entries well or wait until the last minute, the judges don't see our best work. I think they got a good sampling of our best work."

On a national level, Tower and Heartland View both received awards in New York City at the 1997 Gold Circle Awards.

Tower received the top award, the Gold Crown, which is awarded to the top four yearbooks in the nation.

Competing consistently since 1983, Tower has only received this award one other time for the 1989 yearbook.

Laura Widmer, adviser for student publications, said they knew they were up for either a Silver or Gold Crown award, but they were glad to receive the top honor.

"We've received Silver Crowns in the past, but it's nice to get that gold one in, and being named one of the four best in the country is quite an honor," Widmer said.

Tower has also been nominated one of 14 yearbooks as a Pacemaker finalist, which will be in the Fall of 1997. Awards will be given to the top six winners.

Heartland View also received awards for work on articles, typography and spread design.

After winning many awards, student publications hopes to continue to strive in their work for future recognition.

Cooke said although the awards are a satisfying honor, they hope to just provide a good publication for Northwest.

"I don't think we write anything just thinking in the back of our mind this could be a great award for us," Cooke said.

"We should always be thinking what is best for our reader."

Bowl-a-thon

TKEs purchase land adjacent to campus

by Jacob DiPietro
Chief Reporter

The members of Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity have picked up the pieces of their old house at 222 West Cooper and moved on — to the 500 block of Ninth Street to be exact.

Nearly four months after the TKE house caught fire and destroyed the third and second floors, the chapter has bought a 2.34 acre plot of land to build a new house.

Although the chapter has bought land for their house, they still have a lot of work to do before they can start constructing it.

Chapter treasurer, Jason Klindt, said the bulk of the money to fund a new house will be collected from the alumni.

Although an alumni fund-raising chair has not yet been named, Klindt said the chapter is looking to move steadily ahead.

"We need to start as soon as possible, yet stay realistic," Klindt said. "Which means we are going to start May 1, but hopefully in the summer or fall sometime."

While the chapter is unsure when they can officially break ground, Larry Apple TKE Board of Trustees president, said it is clear why the chapter chose that land.

"The reason we bought this particular ground was the proximity to the University and zoning," Apple said. "It's zoned for multi-family housing."

Before the chapter could purchase the land, however, several environmental tests were conducted. Apple said the chapter had a company from Kansas City come up and examine the property.

"We had an environmental survey done concerning any hazardous materials, seeing as it was in fact railroad ground," Apple said. "And there was a MFA building out behind that stored fertilizer at one time so we had a complete environmental work-up done."

Since the fire, the fraternity has rented a 3,000 square foot studio apartment on 108 West Fifth Street. The tentative new house plans call for over an 8,000 square foot house costing a over half a million dollars.

While the chapter is still without a house, TKE Alumni adviser Russ Northup said in a press release that he thinks the active members are committed to unity.

"I think the chapter is stronger," Northup said. "The support and communication has been outstanding from the active chapter."

FOR THE LOVE OF SPORTS

Athletic director retires after 20 years

by Ruby Dittmer
Community News Editor

His dream was to be the head basketball coach of his alma mater, and after 28 years in Maryville most of these dreams have been fulfilled.

This plan was once a dream of Maryville R-II Athletic Director and Washington Middle School Assistant Principal Charles "Chuck" Goff. Goff will retire at the end of June after contributing more than 25 years to the school district.

Goff was born in Grant City, where he earned his secondary education. During those years, he participated in football, basketball and track. He graduated from what is now Worth County R-III High School in 1956.

Following high school, Goff came to Northwest, and he played varsity basketball for all four years of his academic career. Upon graduation in the spring of 1960, Goff was hired by the Odessa, school district to teach industrial arts and driver's education. He was also the head basketball coach and the assistant football coach.

Following his own hometown superintendent, he moved to Mound City, a place he taught and coached at for four years. During his first year, he was the physical education, driver's education teacher and the assistant football coach.

For the next three years, Goff led the football team and during his first year of coaching he led the Panthers to their first undefeated football season.

"That was one of the biggest highlights of my career," Goff said. "It was a great feeling, but I was under a lot of pressure. It was lots of fun. I still have lots of good memories."

The state playoffs system had not been introduced to Missouri high school athletics at that time, so there were no championship games. Goff said the playoffs system was not introduced until 1962, so therefore his team did not have the opportunity to continue its voyage.

Maryville R-II Athletic Director and Washington Middle School Assistant Principal Chuck Goff spends a Wednesday morning at the middle school. He will retire in June after 28 years of service to the district. Goff said one highlight of his career was when as head coach, his football team had an undefeated season.

He resigned from teaching at Mound City and decided to get out of education.

"I had been teaching for five years," Goff said. "I didn't know whether or not if this was what I wanted to do. I had a chance to sell school buses so I did it."

The school bus selling stint lasted years until Goff decided that the business was not for him. He had two small children at the time and wanted to be able to be at home and spend time with them.

He re-entered the teaching world in Moberly, where once again he followed his hometown superintendent. He was the assistant football and basketball coach.

He moved to Maryville after the 1969 school year. It was an opportunity to move back closer to his and his wife's hometown. Maryville represented Goff's family and friends, which is why he moved back.

He began his career at Maryville as the head football coach, the assistant basketball coach and the driver's education teacher. Throughout his career, he also taught industrial arts, physical education and spent three years in the technical school teaching a buildings and grounds class.

He became athletic director at the beginning of the 1976-77 school year. For the next 20 years, it became his livelihood. Twelve years into his career he became the assistant Washington Middle School principal.

Goff said kids have changed

throughout his career. He noted the change in family lifestyles and now in most families both parents work and most of the kids also work in order to be able to purchase cars.

"One of the things I've seen is kids not wanting to put out a lot of effort to become greater," Goff said. "Work ethics are not what they used to be. I don't think that I have gotten where I am today by sitting around and doing nothing."

Goff, who was born at the end of the Great Depression, said he is very high on the work ethic and has his own philosophy on life.

"The quote I've always liked and it's probably my own quote," Goff said. "When it's time to work we work and we work hard, and when it's time to play we play and we play hard."

Goff said he has fulfilled what he has wanted to do in his career and he has accomplished many things in the past 20 years.

Goff said athletics are the other part of academics. He said kids can learn team work, cooperation, how to get along with others and work ethics through athletics.

Upon his retirement, he plans to spend time with his grandchildren.

When it's time to work, we work hard, and when it's time to play, we play hard. It's my own personal philosophy."

Walk set for Saturday

Mid-America chapter preps to fight disease with annual fund-raiser

by Chera Prideaux

Assistant Community News Editor

Living with an incurable disease is a challenge for those who suffer from them. The seventh-annual Multiple Sclerosis Walk is for anyone who wants to help fund the search for a cure. The walk will take place at more than 420 locations across the nation — including Maryville.

The walk will be at 9 a.m. Saturday at Maryville High School with registration at 8 a.m. Anyone who is interested can still register on Saturday morning.

The participants will have a choice of walking either three or six miles.

More than 100 people in Maryville will participate in the walk. Deb Raus-Coffey, president of the Business and Professional Women chapter in Maryville, said the BPW decided to sponsor the event to recognize and support Janel Phipps, a member who is affected by the disease.

"It's unbelievable," Raus-Coffey said. "I think people just realize it is a great cause."

Last year, the Mid-America chapter raised $420,000 for the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, almost $11,000 of that was raised in Maryville. The walk itself raised $5,877 and $5,700 in donations.

The goal is to raise $125 per walker this year. Walkers raise money by collecting pledges from other individuals.

Of the money raised, 60 percent will go to the Mid-America outreach area funding equipment, education, emergency assistance, support groups and other chapter services. The other 40 percent will fund the national research for the cure.

"There is still no cure," Raus-Coffey said. "They are getting closer every day."

The Mid-America Chapter of the National MS Society serves about 350 people affected by the disease and their families in northwest Missouri.

Teams of four or more will be accepted and eligible for team awards. Teams and individuals can earn prizes including a T-shirt for every walker raising $75 or more.

The grand prize is two free round-trip airline tickets to Orlando, Fla. Those interested in participating, donating or sponsoring a walker can contact Raus-Coffey at 582-2151.

Volunteers are still needed to help with registration, clean up, food service and hosting rest stops.

Women capture 1st, while men finish 5th

by Wendy Broker
Chief Reporter

While most of us stayed in the warmth and dryness of our homes, several track athletes and fans braved the wind, rain and cold at the Northwest Invitational Saturday.

The women came through despite the weather, to rack up 200.33 points and take first place overall as a team.

The women took seven first-place finishes, and several more in the top six. Junior Misty Campbell finished the meet with not only a first place in the high jump, but also a first in the javelin. Junior Julie Humphreys was also busy racking up the top finishes, with first places in the discus and the hammer and a third in the shot put. Her throws in the discus and shot put provisionally qualified her for nationals.

Sophomore Brandy Haan also picked up two first places in the 100-meter dash and the 200-meter dash. Sophomore Jennifer Griffen recorded the final first place for the 'Cats in the long jump. Senior Heidi Metz placed second in the 1,500-meter run and third in the 3,000-meter run. Junior Dana Luke placed second in the 10,000-meter run and the 4x100 relay team of junior Amy Allen, freshman Tami Kielman, junior Shannon Torti and Haan did as well.

Ron DeShon, women's head coach, said he was pleased overall with the women's performance at the meet.

"We ran as well as expected considering the weather," DeShon said. "We did what we had to do to win the meet. We had the opportunity to, it was just making sure we did it."

DeShon said the meet was not only a success as a result of the new facilities and the talent of those who competed, but attributed some of it to volunteers who made it possible.

"A lot of people aided in the success of the meet," he said. "It wasn't just because of the athletes. It was the assistant football and baseball coaches, and the students who stood in the elements without a break. They are the ones who made the meet look good, not just the facility. These people volunteered their time to make the meet possible."

The team will face strong competition at the Emporia Division II Challenge Saturday, DeShon said.

"This is the biggest meet we will attend as a team this year," he said. "There will be some extremely talented programs there. This will give us the opportunity to run against the best. It will be hard to win; kind of like a mini-nationals."

The men also braved the weather in search of top finishes, but came up a little short of original expectations, with fifth overall and fewer top finishes than expected.

Rich Alsop, head men's coach, said the weather was a small factor in the imperfect performances.

"We didn't embarrass ourselves,"

Alsop said. "We just didn't really step it up and perform to our capabilities. No one single person can be blamed for it, we just didn't put all the little things together."

Highlights in the men's dreary day included first-place finishes by freshman Aaron Becker in the shot put and the 4x400 relay team consisting of juniors Ben Grojean, Ben Fields and Jason Yoo and sophomore Dave Sempek.

Sophomore Brian Cornelius placed second in the 10,000-meter run as did junior Chad Sutton in the high jump. Junior Damon Alsop placed second as well in the javelin.

Despite the weather, Grojean and Yoo also placed fifth in the 200-meter dash and 400-meter run, respectively. Aaron Grier took sixth in the pole vault, as did sophomore Corey Parks in the 3,000-meter Steeplechase. Freshmen Rob Schuett and Bryan Thornburg placed seventh in the pole vault and 10,000-meter run, respectively. Junior Don Ferree also finished in the top eight in the 5,000-meter run.

The men will also send a team to Emporia Saturday, Alsop said.

"It will be great competition, and there is no reason to intimidate some of the freshmen, so not everyone is going," he said. "It is a national caliber meet in the middle of the season."

Opening day feelings run high with win

Colin McDonough

I spent Monday at the ol' ballpark and it sparked my desire for baseball to be back.

Just being at Kauffman Stadium with all the other 40,051 people gave me goosebumps all over throughout the game. What a special occasion opening day is.

From the ceremonial first pitch to the unveiling of the three retired numbers out on the centerfield scoreboard — I loved it all.

Obviously if you are a Royals fan, you love George Brett, but it was also special to see the late Dick Howser's number retired along with one of the game's greatest second basemen — Frank White.

Those three people will live long in Royals fans' hearts because they were the backbone of the 1985 World Champion Kansas City Royals.

Another part of the ballpark that I enjoyed was just the pure smell of it. From the ballpark frank to the polish sausage to the peanuts to the beer. You just can't beat the smell of a baseball stadium.

Then to hear the cheers when the home team gets a hit or makes a sensational diving catch in right field is a great feeling.

To listen to the crowd cheer the opposing players when they had their turn at bat, especially the crowd members who did not enjoy seeing Roberto Alomar. I'm sorry but most of the things I heard are too explicit to print, but I'm sure you all have an imagination.

As the score stood even, you could feel the pressure build as the home team wanted to win so badly on opening day.

As the teams headed into the top of the ninth, the Royals held a slim 5-4 advantage, but a two-out rally for the tying run quieted the crowd.

The Royals obliged every youngster's wish when Kansas City defeated the Baltimore Orioles 6-5 with a sacrifice fly to score the winning run and just beat the tag. What a feeling.

Sometimes you just can't beat it.

Scott Summers is a chief reporter for the Northwest Missourian.

Cagers sign five prospects for next year

The Northwest men's basketball team signed four prospects, while the women signed one Wednesday once the signing season started.

Amy Coy, a 6-foot forward from Benton High School signed a national letter of intent to play for Northwest under head coach Wayne Winstead.

Coy was the team's top scorer at 19.0 points and led the team with 7.0 rebounds.

The men's team also took advantage of signing day by inking Chris Brochers of Blue Springs High School, Jason Bass of Blue Valley North High School and Chevist Johnson and Joey Maggett of Omaha North High School.

Brochers is a 6-7 center, who averaged 16 points per game. Bass is a 6-7 forward, who averaged 13.5 points per contest. Johnson is a 5-9 point guard, who averaged 9 points a game. Maggett is a 6-5 swingman who averaged 16 points per game.

Rain, cold weather postpone week's worth of softball games

by Brian Brozyna
Missourian Staff

Both cold weather and a rainout have postponed and cancelled games for the women's softball team over the past week.

MIAA Weekend I in Shawnee, Kan., was rained out this past weekend and Tuesday's doubleheader against Missouri Western State College has been postponed until 3 p.m., April 17, at the University softball field.

Junior first baseman Sue-Ann Zeiger said not playing this week disrupts the play of the team.

"I think it's a disadvantage," Zeiger said. "You want to keep the same level of intensity at this time of the season."

Head coach Pam Knox said the weather delays give the team a chance to work on its defense.

"We understand that in order to win, we need to cut down on our mistakes," Knox said.

"We understand that in order to win we need to cut down on our mistakes."

Pam Knox, softball coach

The team is currently 14-12 (3-3 MIAA) after a 3-7 start. Knox said the team's improvement in its hitting is a factor in the team's overall turnaround.

"(Freshman third baseman) Mandy Urquhart and (freshman pitcher) Michele Ansley are hitting the ball well and Kendra Smith (freshman left fielder) is helping by getting on base," Knox said.

Smith is a perfect 17-17 in stolen base attempts, already tying the record for steals in a season by senior center fielder Kelly Randles. She also leads the team with a .388 batting average. Urquhart leads the team with 17 RBI, followed by freshman shortstop Sara Moss, who has 14.

Ansley has a 5-7 record on the mound but a 1.88 ERA. Freshman pitcher Stacy Neis is 9-5 with a 2.83 ERA.

As a team, the 'Cats are hitting .277 and has a .921 fielding average. Zeiger said the team has come together and everyone contributes.

"There's not one dominant player," Zeiger said. "Our level of play is the same at each position and throughout the lineup."

The team will try to build on its turnaround and resume play today with a doubleheader at Morningside College.

Knox said Tuesday's doubleheader against 16-6 Central Missouri State University, who is first in the conference with a 4-0 record, will be big games.

"It's going to be a dogfight," Knox said. "They're going to be great games."

Netters continue to dominate opponents

by Colin McDonough
University Sports Editor

The men's and women's tennis teams continue to defeat all competitors while completing another perfect week.

The women's squad won all four of its matches to improve to 18-1 overall this season. The women have won 15 consecutive matches and are unblemished in the MIAA with a mark of 5-0.

Mankato State University was the only school to take a single match point against the Bearcat women, but they were still handled easily 8-1 last Friday.

Missouri Southern State College and Southwest Baptist left the court

against the Bearcats without being able to win a single match last Friday and Sunday.

Sophomore Yasmine Osborn continued her dominance as well with three more impressive wins moving her to 16-2 on the season.

Sophomore Iva Kutlova earned three wins as well and improved her season record to 14-3. Senior Maria Groumoutis has been equally impressive this season with a match mark of 15-2.

Kutlova and Osborn have teamed up to be a formidable duo in doubles. They have reached a mark of 17-2 in the No. 1 doubles position.

The men were not quite as dominant as the women but were able to go through the week with a mark of

3-0, with victories over Emporia State University, Mankato State and Southwest Baptist.

Southwest Baptist proved to be the toughest match for the men but Northwest was able to pull out the victory, 5-4.

The Bearcats have a mark of 13-4 overall and a record of 3-0 in the MIAA.

Senior Nick McFee leads the men's squad in total number of victories with nine.

Senior Trystan Crook comes in a close second with eight triumphs against only one setback.

Ricardo Aguirre and McFee have teamed up to capture the best record in the doubles competition with a mark of 5-0.

Bearcats, Lincoln split doubleheader

By Chad Sypkens
Missourian Staff

Cold weather didn't keep the baseball team off the diamond like rain did last weekend as the 'Cats went 2-1 on the week, raising their record to 13-18 overall.

A trip to Lincoln on Wednesday brought the 'Cats a split with the Blue Tigers.

The 'Cats jumped off to a quick start in the first game scoring four runs in the first and went on to win the game 8-5.

Doug Clark raised his record to 4-0 as he pitched four innings, striking out four. Mark Gutkowski came on in relief to pick up save number two.

First baseman Jay Hearn had two hits, including a home run, and joined left fielder Rusty Lashley and second baseman Sean Smith as all three drove in two runs respectively.

The two teams switched places in the second game of the doubleheader as Lincoln countered the two runs scored by the 'Cats in the first inning with five in the second and added three more in the fifth inning and went on to complete the split, defeating the 'Cats, 8-3.

The 'Cats managed only four hits in the nightcap as Hearn continued to pick up the slack and belted his club high sixth home run of the year and second of the day. Hearn also drove in two runs, as he leads the team in that category as well with 28.

The 'Cats scored five runs in the eighth inning and added an insurance run in the ninth in a come-from-behind conference win Monday over Missouri Western, 10-8.

The 'Cats improved their conference record to 4-9, placing them in the No. 7 position in the conference. The top eight teams qualify for the MIAA Tournament.

Designated hitter Chad Crain delivered a two-run double in the decisive eighth inning in which the 'Cats scored five runs on three consecutive errors by the Griffons.

"We played well against the Griffons and hopefully we have turned things around," Hearn said. "Hollister did a great job even though he didn't get the win and I was glad to see Colby come back after he had problems with his throwing shoulder last week."

Track teams start with victories

by Wendy Broker
Chief Reporter

The first steps on the track were successful ones for the Maryville High School track teams this season.

The boys' team, predominantly underclassmen, placed first out of four schools in its first meet this year Thursday at home.

Mike Thompson, boys' head coach, said he has high expectations for the season and the team has not failed to meet them yet.

"Our first meet proved my thoughts," Thompson said. "The boys had outstanding times against good competition."

Senior T.J. Hennegin, along with 11

other 'Hounds, picked up first-place honors. Hennegin placed first in the 100-meter dash, broke the school record in the pole vault with a first-finish 4x200 and 4x100 relay teams.

Junior John Otte pulled in a few No. 1 slots for the 'Hounds as well in the 800-meter run, the triple jump and as part of the 4x800 and 4x400 relay teams. Sophomore Adam Otte also snagged four firsts, in the 400-meter run, 200-meter dash and on the 4x200 and 4x400 relay teams.

"In the pole vault, we have T.J. Hennegin, who broke the record in the pole vault at the meet, and junior Jeremy Lliteras right behind him," he said. "Times in middle distance races, long sprints and relays indicate we will be very competitive. Our success, however, will be determined by the marginal events — those we don't have stars in."

The team's next meet is Friday in Clarinda. The boys also have a meet Monday at home.

The girls' track team also opened the season at home last Thursday, placing first out of three teams.

Junior Jill Middleton picked up three of the 11 first places for the team in the high jump, triple jump and long jump. Senior Valerie Stiens also snagged a few firsts in the 800-meter run and 1,600-meter run, as did junior Abbey Lade in the 400-meter run and the discus. Lade also placed second in the shot put.

Jeff Martin, girls' head coach, said the team is progressing well.

"I was really pleased with their performance, especially for it being their first meet of the season," Martin said. "I wasn't sure how things would go with the majority of the team being freshmen, but I kind of like the direction we've taken so far. We are coming along a little better than last year when we were slowed down by injuries."

The girls next meet is on Monday at home against Bedford, Albany, Maysville and St. Joseph Central junior varsity team.

Kauffman's 25th year opens with win

by Chris Geinosky
Community Sports Editor

After a slow start to the season, the Royals have put things together with the help of their opening homestand, which started the 25th Anniversary of Kauffman Stadium.

Kansas City lost its first two games of the season to Baltimore, but the Royals have bounced back, winning three of their last five games.

Most sports media have the Cleveland Indians and Chicago White Sox as their preseason favorites to win the American League's Central Division, but with the acquisitions of Jay Bell, Jeff King, Chili Davis and Jermaine Dye, the Royals may have the opportunity to make some noise.

"We've made some changes, and we have quality people this year," Royals manager Bob Boone said. "We know we're talented, and now we'll find out how good we are."

The Royals are coming off of a

6-5 win in their home opener Monday, and a 4-2 extra-inning loss to the Orioles Wednesday night.

After Monday's game, Boone said what it will take for his team to be successful.

"Our bullpen will be the key," Boone said. "We'll go as far as the bullpen takes us. There's no 'Is' in the clubhouse right now, and everyone's playing for the same thing — to win."

Kansas City has the opportunity to move up in the division as eight of its next 10 games are at home.

The Royals will conclude their series with Baltimore tonight and will play host to Minnesota this weekend before heading to Toronto for a two-game series next week.

The Royals had plenty to celebrate during pregame ceremonies of the home opener. The Blue Ridge Cutoff overpass over Interstate 70 was officially renamed the George Brett Bridge.

Also before the game, Kansas City unveiled the team's three retired uniform numbers. The number five, worn by Brett, the number 10, worn by former manager Dick Howser, and the number 20, worn by Frank White, are displayed below the scoreboard in center field.

In a Royals' media release, vice president and general manager, said this will be a day to remember.

"Each of these three individuals contributed so greatly to the rich tradition of the Kansas City Royals,"

Robinson said. "Having their retired uniform numbers permanently displayed at Kauffman Stadium will serve as a lasting tribute to their wonderful accomplishments."

Brett, White and Howser's widow, Nancy Howser, each threw out a first pitch to start the game.

Brady Anderson, Baltimore's designated hitter, slides into home in the top of the first inning of the Royals' home opener at Kauffman Stadium. Anderson just beat the throw of Kansas City right fielder, Jermaine Dye. Anderson

went 2-3 on the day with two runs scored and a solo home run in the top of the sixth inning. Despite Anderson's heroics, the Royals' Jeff King hit a sacrifice fly in the bottom of the ninth to plate the winning run.

Spoofhound netters scorch competition

by Chris Geinosky
Community Sports Editor

Maryville welcomed the Savannah Savages to town Tuesday, and the boys' tennis team greeted them with a 6-3 loss.

The win boosted the 'Hounds' overall record to 2-0 and their Midland Empire Conference mark to 2-0 as well.

Head coach

P.K. Krokstrom said the team has performed well so far this season but thinks there is more in store.

"We're looking good, but I don't think we've seen our best tennis yet," Krokstrom said. "This is a team that has the potential to take it all. Everyone's dedicated, and now they believe they can win the district."

Four of Maryville's six singles players started the 'Hounds on the right foot and won. Deno Groumoutis downed Adam Aderton 8-1, and Jeremy Gaa won 8-2 while Ross Pry and Nate Mayes both picked up victories for the 'Hounds.

In doubles play, Maryville won two of the three matches. Groumoutis and Nick Ferguson teamed up for an 8-6 win, and Gentry Martin and David Neustadter won 8-4. Junior varsity winners included Jamie Loch, Yasene Almuttar, Chris Robertson and Doug Lewis.

Maryville opened the season last Thursday and the Spoofhounds dominated all aspects of the meet. The 'Hounds traveled to St. Joseph and blanked Lafayette High School 9-0.

In singles play, Groumoutis, Martin, Neustadter, Gaa and Pry each shut out their opponents 8-0. Mayes was the lone 'Hound to lose a game but took the decision 8-1.

Doubles was more of the same for Maryville as all three teams paired up for 8-0 victories.

In junior varsity play, Shawn King, Loch, Matt Walker, Dan Walter and Ben Gille were victorious.

Maryville's meet against LeBlond High School Tuesday was canceled because of cold weather.

The 'Hounds will take to hard courts this afternoon and will attempt to continue their undefeated season when they play host to Benton High School at the University tennis courts.

"This is a team that has the potential to take it all. Everyone's dedicated, and now they believe they can win the district."

Linksters fall to Savannah, drop 3rd consecutive meet

by Scott Summers
Chief Reporter

The Maryville boys' golf team hit the links at Mazingo Golf Course in search of its first victory of the season against Savannah on Monday but could not overcome the Savages.

The Spoofhounds were beaten by 15 strokes, losing 164-179. Individually, freshman Marty Prokes led the Spoofhounds, shooting a six-over-par 42 at the nine-hole event.

Junior Tylor Hardy and freshman Jesmin Ehlers finished only three shots behind Prokes, each shooting 45 during the round. Sophomore John Throener rounded out Maryville's team score, finishing with a 47.

The junior varsity team also lost its first home match of the season, falling to Savannah by six strokes, 183-189.

Senior Tim Espey led the 'Hounds with his nine-hole total of 43.

The Maryville varsity golfers lost a match to Lafayette last Thursday, finishing with a team total of 200, which was 20 strokes off the lead.

Throener led the Spoofhounds, shooting a nine-hole 48 during the match.

The Spoofhounds will take on Benton High School at 4 p.m. Thursday at Mazingo.

Cold weather puts damper on ballgames

by Scott Summers
Chief Reporter

The Spoofhounds had no more than started their season when the weather took a turn for the worst, forcing the boys' of summer back indoors for at least a week.

The Spoofhounds, 2-1 overall and 1-0 in Midland Empire Conference play, were just beginning to fire on all cylinders when the engine froze.

Lohafer is disappointed that his team has not played since April 1, but he knows the 'Hounds will have to wait out the weather.

"It's like going back to the first ballgame again since we haven't played for a whole week," Lohafer said. "We're back to square one."

Before temperatures plummeted, Maryville had destroyed LeBlond in a 13-5 victory, chalking up 11 hits.

The Spoofhounds' next game is 5 p.m. Thursday at Benton High School.

Girls track team earns top finish

by Wendy Broker
Chief Reporter

The girls of the Maryville track team competed in a freshmen meet at home Tuesday.

Melissa Myers, Meredith Wurm and Jessica Gage were among the top finishers in the meet.

Myers placed first in the two-mile run. The mile medley relay team of Jennifer Barnann, Angie Schuster, Adriane Hunt and Myers also placed first.

Myers received second place in the mile run. Wurm placed second in the 100-meter and 300-meter hurdles and was on the second place 4x100 relay team.

Gage earned a second place finish in the 800-meter run and third in the mile run. Gage, Myers, Jennifer Easton and Amy Eckerson were on the third place two-mile relay team.

The process will go to the national committee who will now vote for academic all-American honors. Results will be announced April 10.

Kearns, a three-time all-conference and all-region runner, holds a 3.87 grade point average as a dietetics major. She is a two-time all-MIAA academic selection and became the school's first-ever conference champion in cross country when she placed first at the 1996 MIAA cross country championships. She was also named an academic all-American by the National Cross Country Coaches Association this year.

Football team to open season with road games

The Northwest football team will open up the 1997 season with two road games, before opening MIAA play with its home opener against Missouri Southern State College for Agriculture Day at 1:30 p.m. on Sept. 20.

The Bearcats open the 1997 gridiron campaign on Thursday, Sept. 4 against Midwestern (Texas) State in a 7 p.m. kickoff. On Sept. 13, the Bearcats will take on Wayne State (Neb.) at noon.

The nine-game MIAA schedule has the Bearcats traveling to Missouri Western (9/27), Missouri-Rolla (10/11), Pittsburg State (10/25) and Emporia State (11/15). The remainder of the five-game home schedule feature Washburn (10/4) for Family Day, Southwest Baptist (10/18) for Homecoming, Central Missouri State (11/1) and Truman State (11/8).

The Bearcats, co-champions of the MIAA, went 11-2 last season and advanced to the NCAA's Elite Eight in the Division II playoffs, before losing to the national champion Northern Colorado, 27-26.

The 11 wins were the most in the school's history.

THE WEEK THAT ZEUS GOT LOOSE

Greek Week brings sororities and fraternities together for a celebration of fun, unity and games the gods would envy

New schedule extends week, participation

by Karen Conrad
Missourian Staff

The gods must be crazy, but Greek Week has extended for three more days this year.

Instead of just a weekend, the week-long celebration will include new events such as a free-throw contest, softball and sand volleyball tournaments, a motivational speaker Monday night and a Greek Feast.

"This gives us a chance to refocus what Greek Week should be about and make it a whole week of fun instead of one day of games," Kerry Wells, Greek Week co-chair, said. "Greek Week was becoming a habit every year, and we want enthusiasm."

The purpose of Greek Week is to focus on Greek unity, develop the philanthropy and community service and add academic leadership. With a full week, more time can be spent on the goals.

"As our Greek system grows, so does our activities such as Greek Week," Wells said. "The purpose is to enhance the relation between fraternities and sororities and increase campus and community involvement."

Greeks will devote three days of community service through collecting towels and competing in a compact disc war. All the money raised will buy new dog cages for the new Nodaway County Humane Society.

"It will give us a chance to extend our community service by providing four or five opportunities to help the Humane Society," Wells said.

The work includes painting inside and outside the building, landscaping and cleaning the cages.

"By doing something everyday, a lot more can be accomplished," Lynn Moloney, vice president of promotions, said. "This year we are making an effort to help the community more."

Overall, extending Greek Week will not only benefit the Greek community, but help Maryville as well.

"I think it is better to have it for a full week so it gives more people a chance to get involved," Dawn Stritzel, Greek Week committee member, said.

Theta strengthens Greek community

by Jackie Tegen
Missourian Staff

The waves of colored shirts will jump and sing in the air. The screams of different organizations will ring loud in the breeze. The fraternities. The sororities. Even a welcome combination of both.

Competition between the Greek organizations at Northwest is usually intense during Greek Week as fraternities and sororities battle for points during games, Greek Sing and philanthropy, but the Theta Chapter reflects the true definition of Greek Week.

The purpose of Greek Week is to enhance the relationships between fraternities and sororities and to work toward a common goal of academics, programing and community service.

This will be the second year for Theta, an organization made up of select sorority and fraternity members.

In its first year, Theta proved it was a needed addition to traditional Greek Week groups.

The idea — innovative. The task — simple. Theta set out to prove that all members from the Greek community could get along and work together participating in the Greek song and Greek games.

But times are a changing and Theta is growing. Planning started with a new mission statement, new bylaws and a goal of being more involved. Theta is making an impact that even the gods won't forget.

"Theta was developed for an all-Greek purpose last year," Lynn Moloney, vice president of promotions, said. "It was so new it didn't get developed as much as the Greek Week chairs wanted. This year their (Greek Week chairs) goal was to make sure we develop Theta enough and make it recognized and beneficial enough to be something done every year from now on."

The best way for Theta members to do this is to show what they got. The Theta chapter will participate in every activity with the exception of the chariot race, tricycle race and the softball games. But unlike other organizations, Theta doesn't stop there.

On Saturday, Theta members will serve at the Greek Feast and walking dogs as part of their philanthropy. Given how many benefit from the Greek community, it's ironic to think the members benefit more.

"I get to be with other chapters and meet a lot of people that normally I wouldn't meet except for Theta," Theta member Dwayne Saucier said. "You get to know people and actually participate with people from other fraternities and sororities."

Members went through an application process that asked about setting aside differences and why the applicants think they can represent the chapter well. After looking through the applications, the committee selects the 40-member chapter to represent Theta.

"We are representing the same thing even though we are different organizations," Saucier said.

A feeling of total Greek unity is the highest goal the group hopes to convey to the Greek community.

"I think it shows that the Greek community as a whole can work together, that they don't have to separate chapters all the time and that we do want to interact and work for common goals during Greek Week, which is the whole purpose of Greek Week, to strengthen the Greek community," Moloney said.

After this year's Greek Week, Theta will leave behind more than a memory of the gray shirts jumping, laughing and screaming with everyone — they will represent the memory of the bond the Greek community shares.

T

Story by Adam
Buckley

Is the new Bearcat card doing as well as the previous one, or are there some problems that need to be looked into?

Some people believe there are several problems.

One thing that students must remember about the card is that it is very similar to a credit card.

The money on it can be spent by anyone who lays their little hands on it, so it has to be protected at all times.

"I lost the card on a Monday night (in mid February) around 11:30 p.m. because I had just taken it out to show someone how it had a crack down the middle," geography major Randy Wishon said. "I ran back to Phillips Hall from North Complex, and it must have fallen out between there and home."

Wishon said he searched his room and his roommate's van, hoping to find the card, but wasn't successful.

After skipping class the next day to look for it, he finally went to the ID office to report it lost.

"After I got a new card, I went down to use it in the Deli, thinking I had around $130, but the cashier said I only had around $40," Wishon said.

The next day, Wishon went to the ID office to obtain a printout of the exact purchases made with the card.

He discovered that someone had a field day with his card in the dining area.

"They spent over $50 at Sweets 'N' Treats, and about $30 all together at the pretzel place," Wishon said. "None at the bookstore."

The ID office said he should have reported it sooner, but because he had previously lost it for only an hour or two, Wishon thought it would turn up.

"I know it was my responsibility to keep track of my card, but there's something funny when almost $50 is spent at one time at one place," Wishon said.

After experiencing the run-around for the first couple of days, and being asked if he was sure it wasn't his roommate who was the actual thief, Wishon said the end result was that the University refused to refund the lost money, and to purchase a new card.

Although it is too late for Wishon, the lesson to learn is that if your card is lost — report it. That way, it can be turned off before anyone has a chance to use it without your approval.

Barry Beacom, cash manager for dining services, said the quicker you inform the ID office, the safer your money will be.

"As soon as a student knows they are missing their card, they should go to the ID office and have it shut off," Beacom said.

"That protects them from anyone using their card. If they find it, they can have it turned back on."

Although it can be frustrating

for the person it happens to, Beacom doesn't see this occurrence as too big of a problem.

"In the eight and a half years I've been here, this is the third incident that I know of where a card has been stolen," Beacom said.

"The previous two happened to be roommates that did it to their roommates."

Even though the cards have individual pictures on them, along with names, they aren't 100 percent safe from other people using them.

Beacom said if a person wants to let a friend use his or her card, that's OK, as long as the other person lets the cashier know who the person is that has the card.

Otherwise, if the person is caught using the card without permission, it is confiscated, and the person is written up.

Employees have found that the new card makes it hard to guarantee the validity of who is actually using it because of the way the card looks.

Kathy Rhynes, an employee at Dunkin' Donuts, believes the cards have their drawbacks.

"The pictures are too small and so are the names, and it's hard for us, as clerks, to take time to actually study it," Rhynes said. "Sometimes we're still not sure if the right person is using it, because you can't go by the pictures on all of them. It's a definite problem."

Another problem is time. Rhynes said this is something they don't have enough of when it comes to the process of checking each card to make sure the user matches up with the picture.

The dining area isn't the only place that has had some problems with Bearcat cards. The bookstore has had its share also.

Kent Marlow, manager of the Bearcat Bookstore, said its process is a little more strict when it comes to using the Bearcat card for purchasing items.

When a customer uses the card to charge a purchase to an account, he or she must let the cashier look at the card, and then they must sign the receipt, he said.

However, problems still arise. Just recently, an incident occurred where a student forged a signature and disciplinary action was taken, Marlow said.

In the case of the food service area, however, Marlow doesn't think this process would work well.

Food service gets more customers than the bookstore, and having everyone sign their names would take longer than students would tolerate, he said.

In addition to the problem of cards being stolen, many on campus, including Wishon, might recognize another problem — the degradation of the cards.

Rhynes sees a lot of students and faculty come through the line at Dunkin' Donuts, and she has seen quite a few cards that are in bad condition.

"The cards break easily," Rhynes said. "They usually start around the picture area, and then break in half from there."

The new Bearcat cards have been around for almost a year.

Although some would agree that they are much nicer to look at, they also have a darker side to them.

Your Man provides solutions

The Stroller

Weekly Wanderer finds answers to construction worker's paradise

C'mon now, everybody, sing it — "Construction junction, what's your function? Construction junction, what's your function?"

Yes, the school is turning into a construction worker's paradise. Northwest is the only campus in the world where you can a) get to tear up a former pretty campus, b) take asbestos out of buildings and c) get to park wherever you want without a parking ticket. I wonder if Campus Safety has tried to ticket any backhoes in the past couple of months?

Being the quality-happy campus that we are, it is good that administrators are helping to see that students get their exercise as they walk blocks out of the way just to end up in their next class. Your Man has even felt the benefits of walking around orange snow fences as I think even I have shedded a few pounds in the process of going to class.

Therefore, I have an idea about things that could be done to speed up the construction.

1) I need the help of my friends in the Administration Building. The rich folks who work in "The Palace." You see, these are the money people around here. Without them, no plan can work or even take place.

2) Your Man needs a little love from the guys and gals who represent us over in Student Senate land. Even though their power is somewhat unknown to the majority of Northwest, I was happy to see them send out questionnaires about off campus living conditions. It was only something they have been talking about since my freshman year when the kids on Beverly Hills 90210 were entering high school.

3) I would also like to see the help of the Greeks. With Greek Week (actually a whole week this year, eh?) coming up in the very near future, your help is needed to replant the grounds around Colden Pond for your traditional canoe races and the sacrifice of the young sorority member into the demons of the depths of the pond.

4) Maybe most importantly is the King of Quality at Northwest. The man with the plan, University President Dean Hubbard. He is great. A master of vision toward the future. Don't get me wrong, an ice rink would be a great thing to have on campus and it would save trips for students in the winter to St. Joseph who want to ice skate. But how about some more parking instead? Which is more user friendly?

With these people's help, Your Man can turn this campus into the sea of green which it was only a short time ago. But I need the help and backing of these people who make Northwest what it is and myself something to write about each week.

Without them, Your Man would have not have gotten to where I am now and be what I am today, and keep me coming back for more tomorrow.

You see, the plan would call for around-the-clock working. Something the construction workers wouldn't go for, but it is time to restore this campus and return it to being a state-recognized arboretum.

No longer is the time for workers to sit and watch students walk by and have seemingly endless breaks. (Let me state that many of the people I am talking about I see on my way through the orange mazes to class and on a return trip, these same people haven't moved. It is not to say all of the workers are like this. If the Germans could have dug trenches this fast in World War II, it could have been a different outcome.) It is time for constant movement and completion of the project.

HEY! WHO GOT AHOLD OF MY COLUMN?

There must be another conspiracy in Maryville. I hope that Associated Press and the BBC doesn't get a hold of this story. Your Man wouldn't write all of this. I am a kinder and gentler Stroller.

In this short space, I would just like to say congratulations to the people of Maryville for passing a school bond.

It must be freezing in hell right now.

So all Your Man wants to know is who is going to head the committee to pick the light fixtures, sink and faucet parts, the door knobs, wall paints and coverings, paint styles and carpet colors?

The Stroller has been a tradition at Northwest since 1918.
